2 RIVERS FALLING, BUT PRESTON DIKE BREAKS IN ILLINOIS

Levee Near Aldridge Goes Out 'Like an Explosion' and Floods 51,000 Acres.

RESCUE BOATS SENT TO McGEE CREEK

Engineers Trying to Save Secondary Chouteau Island Wall Near Granite City.

The Mississippi River at St. Louis dropped to 38.3 feet today, a fall of half a foot in 24 hours, after breaking through the Preston levee near Aldridge, Ill., last night and flooding an additional 51,000 acres.

At St. Charles the Missouri River fell to 34.2 feet, a drop of .7 of a foot in 24 hours, and only the Illinois River below Beardstown remained stationary, continuing its destructive course that threatened the McGee Creek levee district and prompted the sending of a Coast Guard cutter and several utility boats into the area to evacuate families and livestock.

With the failure of the Preston levee, Army Engineers said the pressure of the Mississippi on other weakened levees downstream would be considerably lessened, enhancing the prospects of sandbagging and reinforcing them to hold until the major flood danger is passed.

The break at Preston was described by Engineers as having occurred like "an explosion—the river tore the levee clear through from the bottom up." The flooded lands are in the Preston, Clear Creek, East Cape Girardeau, Miller Pond and North Alexander levee districts.

East Side Danger Point.

Danger points that were being closely guarded today included the secondary Chouteau Island levee, Nameoki and Venice levee districts. After the main Chouteau Island levee was breached yesterday, soldiers and volunteer workers concentrated on reinforcing the secondary levee, which during the night developed serious sand boils and became soggy with water. If this secondary levee breaks, a third levee of the East Side Sanitary and Levee District will hold the water out of Granite City.

Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren reported only scattered showers in the watersheds of the Missouri and Mississippi last night, the heaviest rain falling in the extreme northwest section of the State near Maryville, which had 3.71 inches of precipitation. Although the weather forecast is for occasional showers here today and tomorrow, Wahlgren does not expect them to affect the rivers.

"A heavy rain now within a 24-hour period," he said, "would be disastrous, because the ground is saturated and any additional rainfall would run quickly into the streams."

Capt. Beckwith Jordan, assistant executive officer of the Coast Guard station at St. Louis, ordered all river craft to regulate speeds to prevent wave wash, which could damage some of the Boy, 5, Saves Baby Brother, Sister In Fire Set Playing With Matches

DEDHAM, Mass., May 2 (AP).—Bobby was just another little boy when his mother went out to do some shopping this morning, but by the time she got back he was just as much a hero as any grown man.

Bobby's full name is Robert Dickey and he is the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dickey.

As Police Chief John B. Hartnett reconstructed the story, after talking to Bobby, this is what happened:

Bobby, his 3-year-old sister Beverley, and his 15-month-old brother Kenneth, thought it was fun, lighting matches and blowing them out. Then, one of the flickers ignited a lace curtain and a moment later the living room was in flames.

Bobby wasn't able to pull Kenneth from the crib, so he tipped it over and took the baby in his arms. Escape by the front stairway was cut off.

"Beverley, you stay right behind me," he told his sister as he made for the rear stairway. She did, one hand grasping his shirt.

With smoke swirling around and terrific heat following them, little Bobby went down the stairs to the safety of the back yard.

POSTWAR SOCIAL, ECONOMIC WORLD PROGRAM OFFERED

U. S. Delegates to Labor Parley Submit Freedom From Want, Trade Liberation Plans.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 (AP).—The United States delegation to the International Labor Organization conference asked the 40 member nations today to "subscribe at the earliest possible date," rather than at the postwar peace conference, to a program aimed at insuring world freedom from want.

The delegation proposed these social objectives:

1. Opportunity for useful and regular employment, at fair wages or returns, under "reasonable" conditions.

2. Establishment of minimum standards of employment to prevent exploitation of workers whose opportunities for high wages employment are limited.

3. Provision for child welfare.

4. Raising standards of living to provide adequate nutrition, housing, medical care and education.

5. A regular flow of income to all whose employment is interrupted by sickness, injury, old age or lack of employment.

In shaping economic policy the American delegation urged that the United Nations agree to these objectives:

1. Sound development of human, material and technical resources, and the elimination and prevention of restraints on needed production and technical progress.

2. Liberation of trade, movements of capital, communications, transportation and the exchange of scientific knowl-

GERMANS STILL USE ROME ENVIRONS FOR MILITARY PURPOSES, BRITISH ASSERT

LONDON, May 2 (AP).

GERMANY still is using the environs of Rome for military purposes and the British Government has made no commitments on requests that the Italian capital be regarded as an open city, the Foreign Office informed the House of Commons today.

The statement was in reply to a question by Edgar Granville.

ATLANTIC AIRLINER BEING DESIGNED TO CARRY 400 PERSONS

Reporters See Full-Scale Model of Six-Engine Craft.

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 2 (AP).—The wooden skeleton of a postwar plane—a 400-passenger liner designed to cruise over the Atlantic—was previewed by aviation writers here.

The craft was displayed in full-scale wooden fuselage design at the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation plant. The new plane, known as Consolidated model 37, will not be built until after the war. Then it is intended to fly from New York to London nonstop with ample fuel reserves to reach alternate airfields on the European continent.

Model 37 has a wingspan of more than 200 feet. It will be powered by six huge pusher engines. The fuselage, of an amazing length, is built in two levels.

Henry Growald, project engineer for the plane, said 16 major companies and about 400 other companies were contributing to the design and contemplated production.

Except for the fact that its pusher-type propellers are on the trailing edge of the wing, model 37 is of conventional design. It will carry three times as many passengers as the Lockheed Constellation, world's largest land plane.

Slot Machines in Camps Reported Taking Troops' Pay, Inquiry Urged

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—An investigation of reports that some soldiers are losing a large part of their pay in army camp slot machines was sought today by Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire.

The request for investigation was directed to Brig. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, chief of the War Department's legislative and liaison division.

"The complaint reaching me," Bridges said, "is that the slot machines have been taking a substantial part of the pay of some service men, and placing them in financial difficulties.

"I have asked the department whether their use at the camps has been officially sanctioned and if so, who owns or controls the machines.

"In that connection, I mentioned having received reports that some of the machines are owned and controlled by a very small and select clique close to the administration."

Bridges said he had relayed to the department a complaint that Camp Patrick Henry, Virginia, was "one place where the situation is extremely bad."

A War Department spokesman said that army regulations forbid slot machines or any gambling devices in post exchanges, service clubs or auxiliary facilities available to enlisted personnel. He said post commanding officers would, in some instances, have authority to permit their use in officers' clubs.

COMMITTEE FOR INQUIRY BY HOUSE IN WARD SEIZURE

Rules Group Reports Favorably on Resolution—Sabath Seeks Wider Investigation.

ARGUMENTS ENDED, DECISION MONDAY

Company Challenges Constitutionality of U. S. Action—'War' Property Not Taken Over.

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—The House Rules Committee reported favorably today a resolution authorizing an investigation of the Government seizure of the Montgomery Ward plants in Chicago, and Chairman Sabath (Dem.), Chicago, asserted the inquiry should be extended to determine why the War Production Board gave a mail-order house so much business.

"That company got 100 million dollars in Government business that should have gone to manufacturers," he told a reporter.

Sabath originally opposed the investigation, demanded by Representative Dewey (Rep.), Chicago.

Speaker Rayburn said he would appoint four Democrats and three Republicans to the group, if the House adopts the resolution. Representative Fish (Rep.), New York, predicted approval by a four-to-one vote.

In the Senate, where two investigative moves are under way, Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, said he would demand a vote on his resolution proposing a broad Judiciary Committee inquiry into the seizure, despite an investigation already set in motion by Committee Chairman McCarran (Dem.), Nevada.

Asserting that "people are shocked by this unwarranted use of military power," Byrd told reporters; "My main objective is to inquire into the use of military force in the seizure of the plant and the removal of Sewell Avery, head of Montgomery Ward, from his business.

"Mr. Avery has notified me that none of his Chicago employes has been classified as essential to war production or deferred from military induction by reason of their employment with Montgomery Ward."

Commending McCarran for sending an investigator to Chicago to inquire into the legal basis for the seizure under an executive order, Byrd asserted his own resolution, introduced Saturday, "will strengthen the hand of the McCarran subcommittee."

'American Public Aroused.'

McCarran said his group, acting under a previously approved resolution authorizing inquiry into all executive orders of President Roosevelt, plans to summon officers of the mail-order firm and the Department of Justice as witnesses.

"Nothing within my memory has so aroused the American public as this action by the Government," McCarran told the Senate.

He took the floor after Demo-

'PHOBIC PRISON' POET DIES; WROTE 'THE LOCOMOTIVE GOD'

Teacher Limited His Movement to Small Area Around U. of Wisconsin Campus.

MADISON, Wis., May 2 (AP).—Prof. William Ellery Leonard, University of Wisconsin poet who confined himself to a "phobic prison," died at his home today of a heart ailment.

Since shortly after he came to the university as an English instructor in 1906, Prof. Leonard limited his range of movement to a small area surrounding the campus. In "The Locomotive God," his autobiography published in 1927, he attributed this to recurrence of a fear he suffered when he was frightened at the age of 3 by a locomotive.

Prof. Leonard married Charlotte Freeman in 1907. She died two years later. His wife, Charlotte Charlton, whom he married in 1914, divorced in 1934, and remarried in 1940, survives. His third wife was Grace Golden, one of his students. Their marriage lasted from 1935 to 1937.

PONAPE, SATAWAN SHELLED; 3 JAP WARSHIPS SUNK BY U. S. SUBMARINES

129 Enemy Planes Destroyed, 800 Tons of Bombs Dropped on Truk—30 Flyers Missing, No U. S. Ship Hit.

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, May 2 (AP).—Powerful Pacific fleet task forces smashed Truk with heavy carrier plane attacks Saturday and Sunday and then bombed and shelled Truk's supporting bases at Ponape and Satawan island, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

A total of 129 Japanese planes was destroyed in the two-day attack.

Eight hundred tons of bombs were dropped on Truk's islands. Shore installations were heavily damaged.

While carrier bombers blasted Ponape, 440 miles east of Truk, battleships commanded by V. Adm. W. A. Lee pounded installations there with their heavy guns Monday.

Tokyo Report of Raid.

(Earlier today Tokyo radio announced an American carrier force had caused "some damage" to Truk's ground installations in attack Sunday and Monday. Tokyo said Japanese interceptors and shore guns "heavily damaged" an aircraft carrier and shot down more than 30 United States planes.)

Satawan, 189 miles southeast of Truk in the Nomoi Island group, was shelled Sunday by cruisers under command of R. Adm. J. B. Oldendorf.

Carrier planes carried out coordinated bombing attacks.

Adm. Nimitz said no American ship was damaged in the operation of the fleet task forces under the over-all command of V. Adm. Marc A. Mitscher.

30 U. S. Flyers Missing.

American aircraft losses were light.

"Approximately 30 aircraft personnel are missing," Adm. Nimitz reported.

Adm. Mitscher's forces carried out the crushing strikes in the center of the enemy's once powerful Caroline Island positions in a quick follow-up of their operations supporting the Hollandia invasion landings in New Guinea April 22.

Nimitz said considerable damage was inflicted at Ponape and Sata-

SCHENLEY'S INDICTED; LIQUOR BLACK MARKET PLOT CHARGED

Distributing Firm, 10 Persons Also Accused of Scheme to Violate Ceilings and Quota.

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—The Department of Justice said today a sealed indictment, charging Schenley Distillers Corporation, New York; a Bayonne (N. J.) wholesale liquor firm and 10 persons with conspiracy to violate price ceilings and to keep false records was returned April 26 by a Newark (N. J.) Federal grand jury.

The Department said the conspiracy revolved around an alleged agreement between the Schenley corporation and Benjamin F. Pross, identified as business manager of the Wine, Liquor and Distillery Workers' Union No. 1 (AFL) of New York, to dispose of 15,000 cases of liquor over the regular monthly allotments then assigned by Schenley to its regular distributers.

The indictment charged the bulk of this liquor passed through the F. & A. Distributing Co. of Bayonne, and Cluff & Pickering of New York City, into markets in Georgia, Texas and Louisiana. The Cluff & Pickering firm was not named in the indictment. Payments were in cash and single payments of $20,000 were not uncommon, the Government said.

BRITISH EMPIRE COUNCIL TAKES UP WAR, PEACE ISSUES

Dominions Seek Greater Voice in Decisions — Eisenhower Present at First Session.

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Cable. Copyright, 1944.

LONDON, May 2.—Under the spell of the second front and to a large degree inspired by its imminence, the Prime Ministers of King George's Dominions met yesterday for the opening session of the Commonwealth conference.

They met with the knowledge, or at least the feeling that any or all decisions that they might take would depend for fruition on the ability of the Allied forces, in the near future, to force and break the German defenses in Western Europe. Thus, in effect, they were like a group of business partners meeting to discuss the equitable distribution of profits from a complicated chemical process still taking final form in a laboratory.

Princess Elizabeth Present.

Yesterday's opening meetings were largely formal and concluded, last evening, with a dinner at Buckingham Palace, made memorable by the first appearance at an official dinner party of Princess Elizabeth, who one day may be the central figure of the whole British commonwealth of nations.

ALLIES ANNOUNCE COMPROMISE WITH MADRID ON TRADE

Reich to Get Only Token Ore Supplies — U. S. Lifts Oil Embargo Against Neutral.

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—The State Department announced today a compromise agreement with Spain cutting Spanish wolfram (tungsten) shipments to the Germans to virtual token supplies, which, it was implied, may soon be blocked completely by Allied invasion forces in France.

The United States accepted the compromise at the insistence of the British, who were said to rely on Spain for certain essential war supplies.

Points agreed to were:

1. In May and June, Spain may export to Germany not more than 20 tons monthly of the vital ore used in hardening steel.

2. For the rest of 1944, not more than 40 tons monthly may be sent. "It is improbable that any of this can be utilized in military products during this year," the State Department said.

3. Allied-designated Axis agents are to be expelled from Spain, Spanish Morocco and Tangier.

4. The German Consulate and other Axis agencies in Tangier are to be closed.

5. Five of seven Italian merchant ships now interned by Spain are to be released immediately; disposition of the two others and of Italian warships in Spanish

LIBERATORS RAID AREA OF CALAIS; 1000 R.A.F. CRAFT IN NIGHT ATTACKS

5300 Sorties Flown Yesterday From Britain and Italy—Aerial Assault in 18th Straight Day.

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—Continuing the intensified attack on railway centers in France and Belgium, American Marauder medium bombers and Havoc light bombers struck late today at yards in Busigny, Valenciennes and Blanc-Misseron, while British Mitchells and Spitfires attacked other and as yet unannounced railway targets.

In a period of about 24 hours, Allied planes have bombed 25 railway junctions through which supplies flow to German defensive positions along the Atlantic.

Earlier today about 250 American Liberators under escort of 250 fighters attacked German installations in the Calais area without loss. They encountered no German fighters and little antiaircraft fire as they carried the pre-invasion aerial offensive into the eighteenth straight day.

A German radio report that Allied fighters were over Western Germany this afternoon indicated that one of the day's fighter sweeps was directed against Nazi air fields.

American headquarters announced tonight that in the record month of April the United States Strategic Air Force based in Britain dropped 43,500 tons of bombs on Germany and occupied territory, shot down 1282 German planes in combat and destroyed more than 450 on the ground. American losses were 537 bombers, less than 3 per cent of those used, and 191 fighters, just over 1 per cent. Operations included attacks on 29 aircraft plants.

Night Attacks.

Last night about 750 British and Canadian heavy bombers from Britain attacked targets in France, Belgium and Germany, while 250 bombers from Italian bases bombed ports in North Italy. The Britain-based planes dropped well over 2500 tons of bombs, it was announced.

The R. A. F. planes from Britain hit an auto works at Lyon, an airplane repair plant at Tours, an airplane factory and explosive works at Toulouse and rail installations in Chambly near Paris.

In addition, the night raiders attacked two Belgian rail targets—at Mechelen northeast of Brussels, and at St. Ghislain, near Mons. They also struck the German chemical center of Ludwigshafen in the upper Rhineland in what evidently was a diversionary operation.

Ten British and Canadian bombers were lost.

In the Mediterranean theater, Wellingtons last night hit the harbors of La Spezia and Livorno (Leghorn), while German installations at Genoa were given their fourth consecutive night of pounding by Liberators. Wellingtons and Halifaxes attacked targets in Alessandria, 50 miles southwest of

Formality-Loving Russians See No Harm in Dress Suits in Wartime

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, May 2 (AP).—The Russians are surprised that people anywhere else should be surprised at the formality of Russian parties either here or abroad.

(Representative Buffet of Nebraska, in the course of an attack on Washington's lavish social activities in wartime, singled out a Soviet Embassy party, and said "We always thought of the Russian Soviet as a Government of and by the people, without high hats, evening clothes and other accessories of capitalistic society.")

The viewpoint here is, first of all, the Russian people would be slightly shocked if their leaders showed up at a party without their best party clothes or uniforms. They would feel let down nationally.

They look at it this way: If you have a dress suit and the occasion calls for a dress suit, then put it on. Why consign it to the moths just because there's a war on?

Few foreigners realize that the Russians are among the world's most formal people. They can be, and are, hospitable, charming, gay, carefree or serious as the occasion demands, hardworking, emotional and sentimental—but always formal.

Unaware, Winston Churchill made a big mistake, for Moscow, by showing up at a Kremlin dinner in his "siren suit," which to the amazed Russians looked like cover-alls. That little incident will be long remembered.

On the other hand, Secretary of State Hull's dark, formal suits made a good impression, unlike that at a recent Red Army day celebration when United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman went in an informal business suit.

'WE'LL BE IN HERE SWINGING TILL WE GET WHERE WE'RE GOING'—STILWELL

'Stretching Shoestring Far as It Will Go,' but Have Learned That Chinese and Yanks Can Beat the Japs.

NEW DELHI, May 2 (AP). — Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of American and Chinese invasion forces in Northern Burma, issued a statement today in which he promised that "we'll be in here swinging until we get to where we're going."

The statement came from his headquarters in the Mogaung Valley, where his mixed forces have reconquered 7500 square miles of Northern Burma and killed more than 7000 Japanese in months of hard fighting. Two years ago this week Stilwell began his retreat on foot out of Burma.

"We are sawing wood and learning," he said today, "and meanwhile stretching our shoestring as far as it will go. We haven't much to boast about—the Japs ran us out a damn sight faster than we're going back.

"It's a long road yet with a lot of hard work. We've come far enough, though, to know that we are right about some things. We know the Chinese soldier can take the Jap if he has a decent chance, and as for the Americans—you know how you feel about your own people.

"We're this far along because of cheerful hard work by everybody on the team—flyers, truck drivers, bulldozer men, pontoon men, food packers and all the rest, plus the guts of the Chinese and our handful of doughboys.

"The Japs are putting up a tough fight and we are going to have setbacks, but I can promise you that we'll all be in here swinging until we get to where we're going."

It was at the conclusion of the retreat from Burma two years ago that Stilwell said: "I claim we got a hell of a beating. We got run out of Burma and it is humiliating as hell. I think we ought to find out what caused it, go back and retake it."

JAP DRIVE TO BREAK ROAD BLOCK FAILS

By THOBURN WIANT

SOUTHEAST ASIA HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, Ceylon, May 2 (AP). — Allied airborne troops have decisively defeated a strong Japanese attempt to break a rail and road block 65 miles southwest of Mogaung in northern Burma after a three-day battle in which heavy casualties were inflicted on an enemy force of 2000 men.

It was the fourth Japanese attempt to wipe out the roadblock, established on the enemy's main supply route from Southern Burma to the Mogaung Valley front, where Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese-American forces are fighting toward Mogaung and Myitkyina.

Field dispatches said the Japanese had been driven back in bitter fighting after breaking through barbed wire entanglements. They also were bombed and strafed by Col. Philip Cochrane's Air Commandoes.

An Allied spokesman said the Japanese have lost at least 1000 men killed in their attempts to smash the road block, not including losses from air action. Casualties, he said, have been at least 10 to one in favor of the Allies.

An Allied communique announced capture of an enemy strongpoint west of the Mogaung River and south of Warazup in Stilwell's Mogaung Valley drive.

In Northern India, the communique noted a marked increase in activity in the Palel area 25 miles south of the Allied base of Imphal. No important change was reported in the Kohima sector 60 miles north of Imphal.

Kohima, which is scattered over a ridge about 5000 feet high, is composed of Kohima town, Kohima bazaar and Kohima village. The Japanese have been in the village, which lies about a mile from the town, for several days and hold the bazaar section to the north but have not been able to penetrate the main box-like defenses of the town, although fighting recently was reported in the outskirts.

The road between Kohima is open northward to Dimapur, although the sections nearest Kohima lie in range of Japanese guns. The road southward to Imphal is blocked.

The communique said a Japanese thrust at Palel, was beaten back the night of April 30 and that many patrol clashes have occurred in the hills north of the Palel road. The Palel action might be in prelude to an expected mass attack on Imphal.

wan by our "protracted shelling and bombing."

Sixty Japanese planes were shot down in air combat in the first day of the Truk attack and 64 were destroyed on the ground. Five enemy planes were downed by the antiaircraft of task force ships.

Japs Weak in Air Second Day.

Only one Japanese plane was encountered on the seconr day of the Truk attacks. It promptly was shot down.

The sighting of only one enemy plane Sunday strongly suggested that the enemy's immediately available air strength at Truk was totally neutralized.

Adm. Mitscher commanded carrier forces in the first attack of the war on Truk Feb. 16-17.

That strike, in which 23 Japanese s hips were sunk and 201 planes destroyed, started a hard-hitting drive to "soften up" the important enemy island fortress which only four months ago was a major forward operating base of the Japanese fleet.

No Mention of Jap Ships.

Since the first carrier task force strike, Truk has been pounded by land-based heavy bombers in almost daily attacks. Mitscher's carrier pilots apparently couldn't find any kind of Japanese ships to hit in their Saturday and Sunday sorties. The communique made no mention of any ships in the lagoon.

Mitcher's force was under enemy plane observation while retiring from Hollandia on the way to Truk. The communique reported five Japanese search planes were shot down in the retirement from Hollandia.

Truk received the heaviest bombing of any atoll in the Carolines in April when the Seventh Army Air Force dropped 500 tons of explosives there in 20 raids.

Japanese aircraft losses at Truk have been heavy since the American air attacks hit the Carolines in February. Prior to today's announcement, official communiques had reported destruction of 198 enemy planes there in aerial combat, 123 on the ground and 20 probables. Twenty-seven American aircraft, Army and Navy, had been lost in these operations buf the pilots of 20 or more of the planes were saved.

Most of the raids concentrated on five islands in the Truk atoll —Dublon, Param, Eten, Moen and Fefan.

U. S. SUBMARINES SINK 12 VESSELS

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—Sinking of a Japanese light cruiser and two Japanese destroyers by American submarines operating deep in enemy-controlled waters was announced bv the Navy today.

In addition, the Navy reported, American submarines destroyed seven Japanese cargo vessels, one large tanker, and a large naval auxiliary on their patrols carried out in enemy waters.

The sinkings increased to 544 the number of Japanese vessels of all types sunk by American submarines, including 45 warships.

BRITISH SUBS SINK A JAP DESTROYER

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—British submarines have sunk a Japanese destroyer and four other vessels in recent attacks on enemy supply lines in Asiatic waters, the Admiralty announced today.

In addition, a communique said, two supply ships and an escort vessel were damaged by the submarines, one of which also was credited with bombarding military installations at Port Blair in the Andaman Islands in the Indian Ocean.

The destroyer was sunk south of the Andamans, a supply ship was sunk in the same area and another supply ship and two smaller vessels were destroyed in Malacca Strait between Malaya and Sumatra.

BRITISH EMPIRE COUNCIL TAKES UP WAR, PEACE ISSUES

provide information on the immediate war situation and his plans as commander in chief of Allied forces in Britain, said an Associated Press dispatch.

(It was the first time a non-British subject had sat in on an important imperial meeting.)

The first purpose of the conference is informative and here all the visitors have complete identity of views. First they, in common with everybody else in the world, want to know about the second front. Later, they will all want to know about plans for the post-second front stage of the war and specifically how and when the war in the Pacific is going to develop into a major blow against Japan. Prime Ministers John Curtin of Australia and Peter Fraser of New Zealand will be most zealous about having clearcut information on this subject and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada will not be far behind.

There are other, non-operational matters, on which the Prime Ministers will want clearcut information. They will want to know what if any understanding, however informal, the British Government may have with the United States and Russia on the subject of Germany, and they will want to know how far the British Government has gone in clarifying its views on postwar security.

Here, at least Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden will be able to explain very much what they explained to Under Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius Jr. during his recent visit here. Thanks to the exchange of views which they recently had with the American delegation to London they may be able to gauge various possibilities of postwar organization far better than they could have one month ago.

Permanent Council Urged.

The Prime Ministers will have the opportunity to explain their view that the commonwealth governments in future should not only be kept more intimately informed of prospective decisions before they are made, but by some means yet to be devised have a greater voice in framing decisions which affect the security and well being of the empire as a whole.

The creation of a permanent empire council of secretariat is being widely suggested as a means of giving members of the commonwealth more active and immediate voice in framing decisions of imperial importance and in scrutinizing London policies while they are still in the stage of formulation. Such a permanent council may eventually be decided on but its powers and functions will be carefully examined before such a country as Canada, for example, can be expected to agree to join. Australia and Canada are most particularly eager not to undertake any commitments which may jeopardize their ability to deal independently with great non-empire friends.

Other questions to be discussed most intently are sure to include postwar security, colonies and their administration after the war, empire trade, shipping and air transport, and emigration from Britain to the colonies and dominions.

Most of the matters will require extensive examination over a long period and only the most general and informal understandings can be reached at this time.

AFL WARNS LABOR OF ITS STERN DUTY DURING INVASION

'No Time to Strike' — Workers Must Carry on 'in Same Spirit as Our Armed Forces.'

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 (AP). —The production front was cautioned by the American Federation of Labor today against any letdown from overconfidence before or during the invasion.

"This is no time to strike," an executive council statement said.

The council, holding its quarterly meeting, expressed gratification with the results of an appeal it made last January for extraordinary production efforts.

"Three months have passed since that action was taken," the council said. "During that pesiod no strikes have been called by any affiliated union of the American Federation of Labor engaged in war production. During that period tremendous progress has been achieved in labor's productivity in key industries. During that period labor has more than fulfilled the Government's most optimistic expectations.

"When the invasion starts and the fighting hits its highest pitch, the workers of America must carry out their assignments as a stern and solemn duty with the same spirit and the same high morale as our armed forces.

"Only in this way can labor do its part fully in bringing about victory in the shortest possible time and in saving the lives of our own sons and brothers serving on the fighting fronts."

President William Green acknowledged to reporters that some "local strikes" had occurred. He said there were "very few" and had no sanction beyond the local union.

The council received a letter from J. J. Singh of the American-India League requesting the federation's support in having Indian nationals placed on an immigration quota basis. The letter was discussed and tabled. The AFL has not yet deviated from its policy of opposing any modification of the Oriental Exclusion Act.

Green announced that the May 15 deadline for filing financial reports with the Internal Revenue Bureau had been extended to July 15.

7. The British-American oil embargo on Spain is to be lifted immediately, with resumption of old quotas of 48,000 tons of bulk oil from the Caribbean monthly for metropolitan Spain, 13,000 for the colonies and 1500 tons of packaged petroleum products from the United States.

"One of our objectives in these negotiations was to continue to deprive Germany of Spanish wolfram," said the State Department. "Although agreement was reached on a basis less than a total embargo of wolfram shipments, this action was taken to obtain immediate settlement on the urgent request of the British Government."

The announcement, made jointly with a statement by British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden in the House of Commons, indicated that Germany is likely to receive allotted wolfram supplies for only two or three months before Allied military operations dam up shipments completely.

BRIEF EXPUNGED IN LIBEL APPEAL AS DEFAMATORY

State Supreme Court to Permit Man Denied Damages to File New Document.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 2.—The Missouri Supreme Court today ordered expunged from its files a legal brief and part of an abstract of record filed by Robert E. Kleinschmidt of Hillsboro in his pending appeal to the court from loss of a libel suit, because the documents contained "scurrilous and defamatory" matter.

This order strikes from the official court records all of the brief containing Kleinschmidt's legal points and argument in support of his appeal, and deletes from the abstract of the trial record two affidavits by Kleinschmidt relating to filing of his bill of exceptions and to an anonymous letter he said he received after the trial, in Mississippi County Circuit Court at Charleston last August.

Division One of the Supreme Court, which issued the order, said "the court finds that appellant's brief contains scurrilous and defamatory assertions, not sustained by the record and irrelevant to any issue in this case, reflecting upon the personal and official integrity of the Circuit Judge before whom this case was filed, the Circuit Judge before whom it was tried, the members of Division Two of this court, and courts in general."

A like finding "that matter of a similar defamatory and scurrilous nature" appeared in the abstract of the record was made by the court.

New Brief to Be Permitted.

Kleinschmidt's appeal, set for the May term of Division One, was ordered continued until the September term "with leave to appellant to file a proper brief in compliance with our rules."

The order did not name the judges on whom the court said the expunged matter reflected.

Other records, however, show that Kleinschmidt's libel suit for $50,000 against State Treasurer Wilson Bell and John Eversole of Potosi, over reprinting in handbills of a newspaper article published in the 1938 political campaign, was filed in the Circuit Court of Judge Edward T. Eversole of Festus, and was tried before Judge James C. McDowell in the Mississippi County Circuit Court at Charleston.

The verdict was for the defendants.

Judge Eversole had disqualified himself from hearing the case in Washington County Circuit Court, where it was filed, because his brother, John, was a defendant, and sent the case to Mississippi County Circuit Court.

The records also show that an opinion in Division Two of the Supreme Court, in 1942, dismissing Kleinschmidt's appeal from an adverse judgment in a similar libel suit against the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, for failure to comply with the court rules, was written by Supreme Court Judge Ernest M. Tipton. Kleinschmidt attacked that ruling in his brief in the pending appeal, other records in the case show.

Outgrowth of Judgeship Race.

The 1942 decision involved a suit in which Kleinschmidt sought damages for an article published concerning the 1938 race for Judge of the Twenty-first Judicial Circuit, in which Judge Edward T. Eversole (Dem.) defeated Kleinschmidt (Rep.). Kleinschmidt unsuccessfully carried that suit to the United States Supreme Court.

The pending suit grew out of the printing by Bell, at the request of John Eversole, of circulars reproducing the newspaper article. Bell is publisher of the Independent-Journal of Potosi and operates a printing plant.

Kleinschmidt, an attorney and former prosecuting attorney of Jefferson County, acted as his own counsel in the appeal.

This was the first order by the Supreme Court expunging a record since the court en banc, on May 5, 1942, suppressed two opinions by Judge Ernest S. Gantt and a reply opinion by Judge Tipton in a case involving an impounded fire insurance premium fund, because they contained "scandalous, impertinent and scurrilous" matter.

POSTWAR U. S. JOB PROJECTS OPPOSED BY ERIC JOHNSTON

States and Cities Ready to Handle Big Public Works Program, C. of C. Head Tells House Committee.

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—State and local governments are prepared to handle a gigantic public works program as soon as the war ends, President Eric A. Johnston of the United States Chamber of Commerce declared today, and such pump-priming should be maintained on a "home rule" basis rather than resume the Federal works system of the 1930s.

"Congress should encourage a return of state and local governments to the practice of financing their own public works," Johnston told the House Postwar Economic Planning Committee.

"Steps should be taken to strengthen the financial independence of the states and communities."

He said the local governments now are the "prince" and the Federal Government is the "pauper," reversing the role of a decade ago. Thirty-seven states have aggregate reserves exceeding two billion dollars. Municipalities have ready for contract or under survey capital improvements valued at $3,700,000,000, he testified.

"It is one of our important jobs now to take steps to revise our tax structure to insure the continued financial independence and political autonomy of our states and communities," he said.

Urges Tax Law Revision.

Johnston also recommended revised tax laws to encourage private investment, declaring that this alone would provide jobs for returning soldiers.

Industry and labor together did a "magnificent" job in the war effort, he said, and "it is not without significance that our Government turned back the railroads to their owners as promptly as possible after their seizure. . . . Private industry's ability to do a better job was recognized." . . .

Reconversion legislation and war contract termination laws should be given a priority on the congressional calendar, Johnston said, and if possible a return to civilian production should be facilitated in various industries. The construction trade, for example, has just about finished its war task, he added.

Warning on Inflation.

Wartime controls should be relaxed only cautiously to avoid inflation, Johnston warned. On business taxes, he said:

"The heart of the problem of private business is found in deterrents to investment. The chief obstacle to a freer flow of savings into productive enterprise is likely to be found in the tax laws. Restrictions upon capital markets in the forms of laws and regulations applying to the issuance of securities also are a handicap. Modifications are highly desirable if business is to have the necessary capital for the creation of new jobs."

Johnston said it would be helpful if plans to lower the high income tax schedules could be adopted before the end of the war "so business can develop its plans for the postwar period."

NAZI COMMANDER OF 20,000 CAPTURED IN RAID ON CRETE

CAIRO, May 2 (AP).—A daring raid on Crete by British officers a few days ago resulted in the capture of a German general named Kreipe, commander of the Twenty-second Panzer Grenadiers, who are known as the Sevastopol division, it was officially announced yesterday.

The operation was carried out without Cretan aid. No further details were given.

(A London dispatch identified the captive as Maj. Gen. Heinrich Kreipe, and said he had perhaps 20,000 Nazi troops under his command at the time he was seized. Kreipe was said to hold the Knights Cross of the Iron Cross.

(A Cairo broadcast Sunday said the German commander of the Crete garrison had been captured by British officers, but identified him as Heinrich Freyberg.)

25 RAIL TARGETS IN WEST EUROPE RAIDED BY ALLIES

Milan. A factory and a dump near Popoli and a dump near Moricone also were bombed.

Yesterday's Operations.

In daylight yesterday, Allied planes from Britain flew 4000 sorties (a sortie is one flight by one plane) while planes based in Italy added 1300 more sorties to the assault on Nazi Europe.

In the Italian theater, Allied medium bombers struck at rail targets in the Florence and Rome areas and fighter-bombers at rail communications on both Italian coasts and at motor transport northwest of Metkovic in Yugoslavia. Two Allied planes were lost in day and night operations and two German planes were destroyed.

Yesterday's attacks from Britain were directed against the Germans' Atlantic Wall emplacements in the Calais area and at 17 rail junctions through which supplies and men move from Germany into France.

Three American bombers and three fighters failed to return from the daylight operations in which five German planes were shot down.

In all, the daylight aerial fleets, which included about 1000 American heavy bombers, dropped probably 3000 tons of bombs in France and Belgium.

REDS RAID LWOW, KEEP UP BOMBING OF TROOP TRAINS

Rail Junction in Old Poland Latest Target—Russians Repel Attack in Romania.

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—A Russian communique tonight said Soviet planes bombed Lwow, rail junction in old Poland, last night but reported there still were "no essential changes" on the land front.

German troop train concentrations were attacked at Lwow and 30 fires set by the bombers, the communique said, addin: "Not less than six trains, with troops and ammunition, and enemy warehouses were burned."

The raid on Lwow followed a heavy Russian bombing Sunday night of troop trains at the important rail junction of Brest Litovsk, about 150 miles to the north.

The Soviet command earier announced that 1500 Axis troops were killed yesterday in local fighting in Romania and former Poland. It said 600 Germans were killed in unsuccessful attempts to gain ground north of Iasi, Romanian railway city, and that a battalion of 800 to 1000 attacking Axis troops were wiped out in the repulse of enemy attacks southeast of Stanislawow in prewar Poland.

The German high command reported that strong Russian attacks were smashed southwest of Kowel, in old Poland about 150 miles north of Stanislawow. The Nazis also asserted that Red Army thrusts had been beaten off at besieged Sevastopol, between the Dnestr estuary and the Carpathian mountains, and on both sides of Vitebsk in White Russia.

On the basis of the Nazi accounts, the fighting in the Kowel sector is around Turja, 22 miles from Kowel and only about four miles from the Kowel-Lwow railway connecting two vital German wings in former Poland. The Russians have never announced such a near threat to the railway.

'FIVE MINUTES TO ZERO HOUR,' SAYS GERMAN COMMENTATOR

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—The Germans resumed today their speculation concerning the western invasion after lying low yesterday, when many of them had predicted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander, would launch his attack.

A Berlin military commentator said "shipping and troop concentrations on the British south coast indicate it's five minutes to the zero hour."

He said 90 per cent of the persons answering a questionnaire circulated in Berlin diplomatic circles expressed this view that "landing attempts on a major scale will take place in May."

DEMOCRATS SUE VOTE BOARD OVER SEPARATE BALLOT

Chairman Murphy Asks Supreme Court to Order Combined Mayoral, General Election.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 2. — Suit to compel the St. Louis Election Board to combine the nomination and election of the Mayor in the Aug. 1 primary and the Nov. 7 election with the general State primary and election was filed in the Missouri Supreme Court today.

Plaintiff in the action is George M. Murphy, chairman of the St. Louis Democratic City Committee. He is represented by a group of Democratic lawyers whom he appointed recently in behalf of the city committee, to render an opinion on validity of the city ordinance effective since April 6, which provides for the separate election and separate ballots for the unexpired term as Mayor.

The petition was filed a few minutes before noon by Attorney Samuel H. Liberman, and immediately Associate City Counselor H. A. Hamilton of St. Louis, representing the Election Board, announced the defendant would waive issuance of the alternative writ of mandamus, a technicality permitting assumption of jurisdiction by the court.

Liberman, stating he would file a motion asking the case be advanced for early hearing, and Hamilton went into conference with Chief Justice James M. Douglas after the suit was filed, presumably to discuss issuance of the writ.

Political Interest.

Although the suit is based entirely on legal grounds, attacking the ordinance as invalid under the city charter and State statutes, there is an obvious political interest back of the question. It would be to the advantage of the Democrats to have their nominee for Mayor listed on the November blanket ballot in the party column with the nominee for President, particularly if President Roosevelt runs for a fourth term.

On the other hand, it would be to the advantage of the Republicans to have Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann listed on a separate ballot, involving no other office. The Democrats are evidently counting on Roosevelt carrying the city for the fourth time, while the Republicans would like to be prepared to win locally even if Roosevelt gets a St. Louis plurality.

The city ordinance was enacted because of the situation created by the death of Mayor William Dee Becker in the glider accident last Aug. 1. He was succeeded automatically by Kaufmann, then president of the Board of Aldermen, but, under the charter, the unexpired term, running to next April, must be filled at the general election this year. The ordinance, sponsored by the city administration, provided for details of the electoral machinery. Kaufmann is unopposed in the primary but there are three candidates for the Democratic nomination.

Under terms of the ordinance the mayoral primary and election would be separate functions, including separate ballot boxes as well as ballots, merely coinciding in time and place with the State primary and election. The Election Board has decided to follow the ordinance unless directed otherwise by a court order.

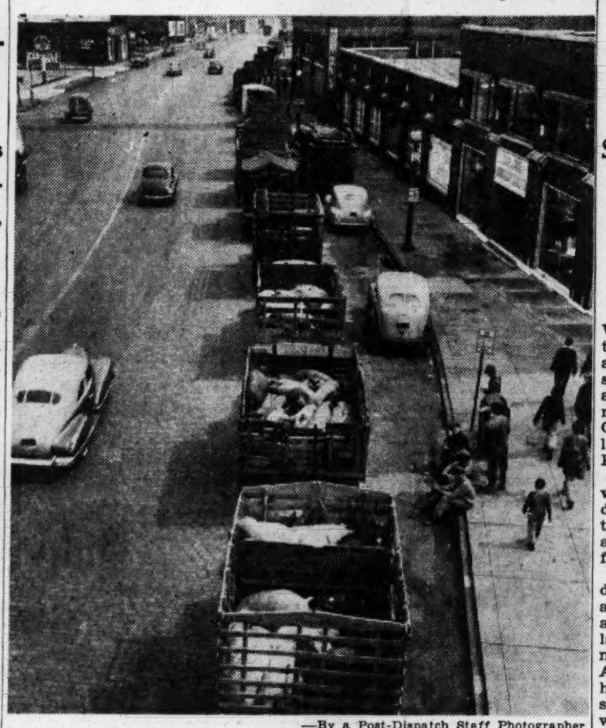

The Murphy suit alleges that the ordinance violates the city charter requirement for filling the vacancy at the general election, because of the arrangement for a distinct election process. It also charges, for the same reason, that the ordinance violates Article 7, Chapter 76, of the Revised Statutes, covering city elections, including Section 11,595, which requires a single ballot. The further allegation is made that the ordinance violates Section 7442, which requires all city ordinances to be in conformity with State law on the same subject. The same general allegations are made concerning the primary as the election.

It is charged in the suit that soldiers and sailors and others casting war ballots as provided for by the recent special session of the Legislature would be deprived of their votes for Mayor, if the ordinance is adhered to, because there will be only a single war ballot.

The petition cites Article 2, Section 9, of the city charter, which says: "Whenever it may be done in harmony with the State Constitution and laws, the Board of Aldermen shall by ordinance provide for and regulate municipal elections and registration of voters and may provide by ordinance for nonpartisan nominations, preferential voting or proportional representation." Some lawyers are of the opinion that this clause, not known to have been tested since the charter was adopted in 1914, is broad enough to permit adoption of nonpartisan municipal elections in St. Louis now. Larger St. Louis County suburbs have nonpartisan elections.

Requesting early action by the Supreme Court, the Murphy suit asks that the Election Board be ordered to combine the mayoral election and primary with the general election and primary, with single ballots. Liberman appeared as attorney for Murphy, with Russell M. Dearmont, Emmett Golden, William L. Igoe, Leo Lyng and John J. Nangle of counsel.

Embargo Put on Hogs as 17,000 More Reach National Stockyards

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer

Farmers trucks loaded with hogs and other livestock waiting in line to get into the Independent Packing Co. yard at 824 South Vandeventer avenue.

Total for 2 Days Reaches 59,635—About 20,000 to Be Unsold at Close of Market Today.

An embargo on all hog receipts at National Stockyards, effective at noon today and to continue until further notice, was voted by the hog marketing committee, representing buyers and sellers, after it was determined there would be approximately 20,000 unsold hogs at the close of business today.

Approximately 17,000 hogs arrived at the market today, bringing the total number for sale to 34,000, more than twice the normal number. An additional 17,000 head remained at the yard yesterday when 42,635 hogs arrived, breaking all hog receipt records, said H. A. Powell, secretary of the St. Louis Livestock Exchange.

Truck arrivals yesterday also broke all records with more than 36,000 head arriving by this means, Powell said. Trucks were lined up around the stockyards all night and all day, he added, and some farmers from flooded areas made two trips in the 24-hour period.

Farmers' trucks also lined South Vandeventer avenue today awaiting entrance to the Independent Packing Co. yard at 824 South Vandeventer. City police were sent to prevent traffic snarls, and to line the trucks, loaded with squealing hogs, in an orderly fashion for almost two blocks south of the Wabash Railroad overhead bridge.

8 NEGROES PERMITTED TO VOTE IN PRIMARY

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 2 (AP).—Eight Negroes, some of them members of the Florida Agriculture and Mechanical College for Negroes faculty, were permitted to vote unchallenged in the Democratic party primary election here today.

They were among 19 Negroes who had registered as Democrats in Leon County even before the United States Supreme Court ruled several weeks ago that Negroes could vote in Texas Democratic primaries.

"They were duly registered as Democrats," a precinct official said, "and we had no alternative but to let them vote."

Earlier, a Negro high school teacher had attempted to vote as a Democrat at another precinct, but left without being admitted to a booth. Officials at her precinct who declined to be quoted by name said she had not been refused a ballot, but had been asked to wait until they could get a legal ruling on her qualifications.

The Florida Democratic executive committee which called the primary election adopted a resolution restricting it to white voters. However, State law contains no provision specifically prohibiting a Negro from voting as a Democrat.

PLAN BEING ARRANGED ON DOGS SO OWNERS CAN RECLAIM THEM

A plan which would enable dog owners to reclaim animals caught by the city's dog-catcher will be worked out, Dr. Joseph F. Bredeck, Health Commissioner, announced today.

Dr. Bredeck, who met yesterday with the rabies control committee of the St. Louis District Veterinarians' Association, said that the terms of the plan have not yet been decided on, but that enough progress has been made to assure that "in the near future" dog owners would be able to redeem their pets after the animals had been immunized.

Matters which have to be worked out before the quarantine order of last week can be modified, Dr. Bredeck said, include the dosage of anti-rabies serum which must be administered to dogs before they are immune, the interval which must elapse between doses and the length of time and place where the animals are to be confined before being returned to their owners. He will meet again with the veterinarians next Monday.

MOTHER OF FIVE IN ARMY WOULD LIKE TO BE THEIR COOK

Mrs. James J. Russo, 2529 Warren street, said today, after her fifth son, Vito Russo, 30 years old, was inducted into the army at Jefferson Barracks Reception Center, "I am mighty proud of my five boys in the army and I would like to be with them and cook for them." Before he entered the army, Vito was a produce manager for a chain grocery here.

The first brother to enter the army was Sgt. Tom Russo, 28, an entertainer and tap dancer, who was inducted three years ago and is now stationed in Alaska. Sgt. Joe Russo, 30, former St. Louis night-club master of ceremonies, is in the clothing issue department of Jefferson Barracks Reception Center. Pvt. Bob Russo, 22, is a member of an infantry unit in Italy, and Cpl. Nick Russo, 21, is assigned to an engineers' battalion in New Guinea.

POSTWAR SOCIAL, ECONOMIC WORLD PROGRAM OFFERED

edge from unreasonable restrictions.

The American proposal also asks that the I. L. O. pledge its governments to a sort of voluntary policing system on social and working conditions in their own countries through a system of reporting back annually to I. L. O. on how their social and labor policies are working.

If the program for uniform reporting is adopted here, and put into practice, it should furnish, officials said, the world's first definite knowledge on employment conditions and economic distress.

Secretary of Labor Perkins was elected chairman of the I. L. O. committee that will consider the American proposals, which are considerably more specific than those in the conference agenda and were immediately interpreted by many delegates as putting the United States representatives at the forefront of liberal forces at the conference.

In another development, British Government delegates issued a statement protesting contentions that Great Britain has been pursuing "delaying tactics."

George Tomlinson, one of the delegates, said the British did not "come as rubber stamps" but wanted a free exchange of opinion before the conference voted on the agenda.

The criticism had come from Sir Walter Citrine, British labor leader, and Walter Schevenels, Belgian labor delegate.

JUDGE INDICATES HE'LL QUASH NEW GAMBLING CASE

Some Legal Point Involved as in Dismissal of Charge Against Andrew McCall.

The same legal point which last Wednesday brought dismissal of the gambling machine case against Andrew McCall will result in dismissal of the case against Gus Kanios, one of five men jointly indicted with McCall, Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin indicated today when trial of Kanios began.

The Judge, however, agreed to withhold his order sustaining a defense demurrer and discharging the jury to give the prosecution an opportunity to argue the sufficiency of the State's evidence.

Kanios, like McCall, was indicted on a charge of setting up and keeping a gaming device in a tavern at 3706 Grandel square last Sept. 8. In his opening statement to the jury trying McCall, Assistant Circuit Attorney said he would show McCall had installed a slot machine equipped with an automatic payoff device on April 26, 1943.

McFarland had planned to lead up to the Sept. 8 date specified in the indictment by telling of other machines allegedly installed on previous dates, on the principle the State could present evidence dealing with any offense falling within the statutory period of three years prior to Sept. 8. But the defense cut him short, contending that the State, having elected in its opening statement to prosecute for an April 26 offense, would have to confine its case to this.

Judge McLaughlin sustained this contention and, when the State was unable to present a case on this restricted basis, ordered the McCall case dismissed for lack of evidence.

When the State set out today to prosecute Kanios for installing a gaming machine in the tavern on Sept. 8, Defense Attorney John L. Sullivan promptly objected, declaring that McCall, tried on the same indictment, had the case against him restricted to a purported April 26 offense, and since Kanios was accused of the same offense, he likewise should be tried on the restricted basis.

The court sustained this contention, so McFarland prepared to present evidence regarding an April 26 offense. When the argument ended, the jury was called back into the courtroom, but after considering the matter, Judge McLaughlin declared:

"Mr. McFarland, you have plainly shown the court you cannot prove the crime of which the defendant is charged."

McFarland then angrily asked if the "demurrers are to be sustained without application by counsel for defense." Judge McLaughlin indicated his mind was made up and he would order the case dismissed, but agreed to let the State argue the point.

HUSBAND OF 'KNOCKOUT GIRL' GETS 18 MONTHS IN THEFT

George Lawson, whom St. Louis police would like to question further about the death of his wife, Bobby Allen Lawson, in her room in Hotel Jefferson April 19, was sentenced to 18 months in Federal prison when he pleaded guilty at Cincinnati yesterday of participation in the transportation of $10,000 worth of stolen clothing.

Lawson hurried to Cincinnati, ostensibly to confer with members of his wife's family, a few hours after reporting her death to police here. A pathological examination subsequently disclosed there was sufficient poison in the body of the Lawson woman—Chicago's notorious "Knockout Drop Girl" — to cause her death. The poison has been identified as similar to the drugs contained in the knockout drops which she is said to have used in robbing night-club acquaintances.

GERT VON GONTARD ON TRIAL IN DRAFT CONSPIRACY CASE

Three Co-Defendants at New York Accused of Helping Busch Grandson Dodge Induction.

By ALVIN GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Testimony was scheduled to begin this afternoon in United States District Court in the trial on a draft-dodging charge of Gert Hans von Gontard, grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, founder of the St. Louis brewery, Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

Except for the selection of two alternates, examination of the jury was completed at the morning session by Judge Murray Hulbert and the panel of 12 was accepted after both Government and defense counsel had exhausted peremptory challenges. Only a few of the prospective jurors disqualified themselves by asserting that they entertained a prejudice against the defendant because of the nature of the charge against him, formally "conspiracy to violate the Selective Service Act." The offense is punishable on conviction by a maximum sentence of five years in the penitentiary or a $10,000 fine, or both fine and imprisonment.

Von Gontard, whose mother is the former Clara Busch of St. Louis, now living in Switzerland, appeared in court with three co-defendants all facing an identical charge because of the assistance the Government charges they gave Von Gontard in avoiding induction.

The other defendants are Lt. Francis X. Grottano of the Army, a former New York City detective; Dr. A. A. Hutchnecker, a physician, and Michael Mangano, an officer of the G. M. Uniform Co. of New York. A fifth defendant named in the original indictment, John Edward Wilson, member of the draft board to which Von Gontard reported, ended his life by jumping from the roof of a 14-story building in January.

The indictment alleges that soon after Von Gontard's arrival in New York from Los Angeles in 1940, he met Detective Grottano who introduced him to Montgano. Mongano, in turn, introduced Von Gontard to Wilson, then a $45-a-week chief clerk of local draft board 20.

Mongano made affidavit that Von Gontard was an essential employe in the uniform manufacturing concern and, on this ground, Von Gontard obtained deferment for about a year. A check-up by the Los Angeles local board, however, led to a demand for his induction and at this point, the Government asserts, Wilson became active in Von Gontard's behalf, entering into long correspondence with the Los Angeles draft board.

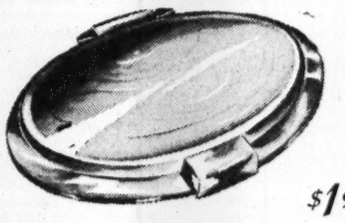

When Von Gontard finally was ordered to appear for physical examination in 1942, the board received a medical history from Dr. Hutschnecker indicating that Von Gontard suffered from a gall bladder ailment of long standing. He ultimately was rejected for military service on the basis of this history.

SENATOR TYDINGS NOMINATED FOR 4TH TERM IN MARYLAND

BALTIMORE, May 2 (AP).—United States Senator Millard E. Tydings, frequent opponent of the national administration who in 1938 withstood President Roosevelt's personal attempt to purge him, is an overwhelming choice of Maryland Democrats for a fourth consecutive term.

The Havre de Grace veteran, now in his seventeenth year in the Senate, defeated four rivals in yesterday's light primary vote, and apparently will oppose a Baltimore Republican, Blanchard Randall Jr., a banker, in the November election.

Engineer to Be Engaged by City To Assist Airport Development

He Will Devote Full Time to Pushing Program as Aid to Kinsey—Two Subcommittees Named to Facilitate Planning.

Employment of an engineer as full-time assistant to President of the Board of Public Service Milton M. Kinsey has been authorized by the Municipal Airport Commission. The assistant will devote all his time to the development of airport facilities for the city.

A resolution unanimously adopted yesterday by the Airport Commission authorized Kinsey to look for an engineer to fill the job, discuss the salary to be paid with the personnel department and apply to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the necessary appropriation.

Kinsey said it had not been decided what salary the new assistant would be paid. However, Commission Member Oliver L. Parks, who recommended two weeks ago that Kinsey have a full-time assistant, suggested that the man be paid $7500 a year. Parks recommended that the assistant be a pilot, engineer and businessman.

Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann said today that employment of an assistant for Kinsey is in no way a reflection on the latter's ability, but pointed out that Kinsey has many other duties to perform as President of the Board of Public Service.

"The move is strictly to expedite development of airport facilities," Mayor Kaufmann said.

Kinsey yesterday appointed two subcommittees—the first the commission has had—to facilitate conduct of the business of the commission. One committee on small airports will devote its time to a consideration of the proposed development of a riverfront airport on the Jefferson Memorial site and will work in conjunction with W. W. Horner, the airport commission's consulting engineer, in the preparation of plans for a system of small airports. The second committee, on plans and procedure, will assist Kinsey to expedite the commission's business.

Named to the small airports committee are James G. Blaine, Oliver L. Parks, Chapin S. Newhard, Albert Bond Lambert and Arthur C. Meyers. Those appointed on the plans and procedure committee are Lambert, Thomas J. Skinker, Charles M. Polk and George C. Smith. The committees will name their respective chairmen.

TRIANGLE CO. GRANTED RENEWAL OF PERMIT

Fuel Privileges Restored on Motion of McBride After 3-Day Hearing.

Renewal of a solid fuels permit was ordered today by the Board of Public Service for the Triangle Coal Co., 4567 DeTonty street, on a motion by Director of Public Safety Harry D. McBride, who had previously recommended its refusal.

The motion followed a three-day hearing concluded last Thursday, at which 28 witnesses testified they had received from the firm coal which did not burn. The motion stated, however, that the board would retain power to revoke the permit for any violations of city ordinances by the company.

Testifying at the hearing, Louis L. Horen, president of the company, asserted that the city's list of approved coal mines was "unreliable and misleading" and served to keep good coal out of St. Louis. He denied misrepresenting the coal sold by his company, but admitted errors had been made in weight tickets designating the type of coal contained in various loads.

ALDERMAN DUKE ABSENT AGAIN, SO HE IS DOCKED $10

The Board of Aldermen cracked down today on Absentee Edward L. Duke, Twenty-third Ward member. Duke was officially recorded as absent in the roll call, and a $10 deduction will be made from his salary.

Duke, who runs a telephone exchange at Earlsboro, Ok., but claims a voting residence in his St. Louis ward, was at the two previous meetings after a long absence, during which, by a lax interpretation of charter rules, he was considered as "excused." Lt. Herman Novack, Fifth Ward member, who has been docked at the regular $10-a-meeting rate while in Army service in Italy, was present today.

The 1944-45 budget bill, fixing the tax rate for municipal purposes and debt service as $1.75 on $100 valuation, the same as last year, was introduced today.

U. S. TO PASS TRIAL OF 5 INSPECTORS IN ORDNANCE CASE

Apparently Undecided on Prosecuting After Acquittal of 5 on Similar Charges.

Trial of five present or former inspectors at the St. Louis Ordnance Plant, charged with passing defective ammunition, will be passed when they are called Tuesday and Wednesday, May 9 and 10, in United States District Court, the Government announced today.

This statement, made by Assistant United States Attorney S. Russell Vandivort to District Judge George H. Moore, was taken as indicating that the Department of Justice has not decided whether to prosecute the cases further, following the acquittal of five men on the same charges April 19.

Vandivort said the Government would ask that the cases be passed to the further order of the court. He said he had consulted with counsel for the defendants. District Attorney Harry C. Blanton said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had no comment to make on his assistant's announcement.

In the case set for next Tuesday, defendants are John Benton Slaner, George Joseph Graef, Amos Bruce Phelps, Edmund Peter Becker and Paul Thaller. Phelps, Becker and Thaller were among the five recently acquitted. Ferdinand L. Stukheil is the defendant in the case set for May 10. Glenn T. Cromwell, Irvan Stephen Cohen and Otto Albert Skinner are defendants in cases pending in other divisions of the court.

The first trial, lasting 12 days, was ended by an acquittal verdict reached in two hours and 20 minutes.

Dr. Walter A. Maier of Concordia Seminary, conductor of the International Lutheran Hour, will prepare sermons in the German language for the Office of War Information which will be broadcast to Germany, it was announced today by OWI German special events division in New York.

The present plan is to send the manuscripts to OWI in New York for approval, the transcriptions to be made here, and the broadcasts sent to Germany. The sermons will be directed chiefly at the anti-Nazi Lutheran elements in Germany.

FLOOD CONTROL HELD UP BY WAR, REYBOLD SAYS

$11,000,000 River Project Awaiting Release of Vital Material Army Engineer States.

An 11-million-dollar flood control project that would have prevented the damaging floods in the Mississippi and Missouri river valleys has been authorized by Congress and awaits only the release of war-vital materials before work can be started, Maj. Gen. Eugene Reybold, chief of Army Engineers, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today.

"Had it not been for the war," Gen. Reybold said, "that project would have been completed and the millions of dollars in damage would have been saved. District Engineers are ready to begin the work as soon as the war ends and man power and materials can be obtained. It will take two years to complete."

Here to inspect the flooded areas in the St. Louis vicinity, Gen. Reybold planned to make an air tour before returning to Washington. He said this year's flood did not appear to him to be as damaging as last year's, because many of the levees that were breached during the high water last May were repaired and made stronger. These are now holding.

Reservoirs Are Planned.

The project Congress has authorized, he said, calls for the installation of a series of reservoirs and levees from Sioux City, Ia., on the Missouri River to its mouth and the construction of similar control measures in the Mississippi River from St. Louis to Cape Girardeau.

In addition to this plan, he explained, there is before Congress now a flood control bill for the entire nation and included in it are plans for supplementary control projects along the Missouri River in Missouri, extending the present authorizations.

"The Missouri valley," he said, "has been sadly neglected from the point of view of flood protection."

Pointing out that the entire plan would cost only 11 million dollars, he said, "It's a shame that this amount of money cannot be spent immediately to prevent damage that last year was estimated at 47 million dollars."

Survey Being Made.

A survey is now being made by the United States Army Engineers office in St. Louis of the Illinois River for a similar project of levees and reservoirs, Gen. Reybold said. With the Missouri and Illinois rivers under control, he added, the Mississippi water could almost be held to a level that would be constant the year around.

Col. Lawrence B. Feagin, district Engineer, and Col. Malcolm Elliott, division Engineer in St. Louis, who accompanied Gen. Reybold on his tour, estimated that 320,000 acres of unprotected land and 98,000 acres of levee-protected land in the Mississippi River valley are under water. Approximately 11,600 troops and prisoners of war are on flood duty in the St. Louis district alone, which does not include the Missouri River valley that comes under the jurisdiction of the Kansas City office of the United States Engineers.

JAP 'DESERTER TO ALLIES'

LONDON, May 2 (AP). — A Stockholm interview with a Japanese described as an ex-member of the Japanese Embassy staff in Berlin and "the first Japanese of standing to desert to the Allies" was published yesterday by the Daily Mail.

The court approved a previously agreed upon arrangement whereby Mrs. Light will receive $3600 in gross alimony, monthly alimony payments of $50 and $100 a month for the support of the child. FOLGER'S COFFEE has RIGHT OF WAY with railroad men

ENGINEER LINDER TELLS HOW HIS FRIENDS DISCOVERED NO OTHER COFFEE CAN COMPARE WITH FOLGER'S

You'll find a practical suggestion for judging coffee in this letter from Mr. C. S. Linder, of Mattoon, Illinois.

Gentlemen:

I have tried many brands of coffee in my time, but have never found anything to compare with Folger's. It seems to have a flavor that you just can't find in other brands.

I have pointed this out to friends who never tried Folger's and they said they were surprised at the difference.

I am a New York Central engineer, and many of my railroad friends have found out about my great discovery by making tests with Folger's compared to other brands.

Yours truly,

C. S. Linder

Why Folger's Flavor Wins Friends

Compare coffees and you'll quickly find out what Engineer Linder and his railroad friends discovered about Folger's Coffee. For you'll taste that special rich, vigorous flavor of mountain grown coffees that's never been matched by any other coffee in the world.

You'll taste all the extra goodness that brilliant sunshine, rich volcanic soil and drenching rains put into coffee grown in the World's Coffee Paradise. You'll taste the special miracle of the famous Folger flavor that only the Folger people know how to produce by blending those rare precious mountain coffees.

And, like Mr. Linder and so many other friendly people who are thrilled with Folger's extra flavor, you'll generously want to share your discovery with your friends . . . tell them there's a mountain of flavor in every spoonful of Folger's!

RETURN TO PEACE ECONOMY STUDIED BY CONTROLLERS

Midwest Conference Opens, Takes Up Problems Raised by Ending of War Contracts.

Problems related to the termination of Government war contracts held the attention today of the midwestern conference of the Controllers Institute of America in the Hotel Jefferson, in its final sessions.

Approximately 360 contracts have been "terminated," or canceled, in the St. Louis ordnance district, of which 275 have been settled at a cost to the Government of more than five million dollars, with 85 cases still pending, Lt. Col. Richard W. Coward, executive officer of this ordnance district, told the conference.

Col. Coward named three factors which make the problem of contract terminations "serious": "1, that there will be so many at the same time; 2, that one of the parties is the Government, and this seems enough to convince anyone that it will be a terribly complex matter; and 3, that so many of our contractors are doing a million-dollar business on a $10,000 accounting system."

Worker Displacement Problem.

C. E. Jarchow, vice-president and comptroller of the International Harvester Co., Chicago, declared a problem had been created by the displacement of workers affected by the cancellation of "more than 15,000 war contracts."

Assurance that renegotiation of contracts this year would be unattended by the "considerable headaches" of a year ago was given by Comdr. E. H. Wagner Jr., U.S.N.R., formerly a partner in the accounting firm of Touche, Niven & Co. of St. Louis, who is assistant chairman of the Navy price adjustment board's New York division.

He declared that renegotiation was "no hodge-podge system," adding: "It is an honest and intelligent endeavor to understand all the facts in the case, with a view of allowing to each contractor all the profits on war business that can be justified and satisfactorily defended in the court of public opinion."

Discussing the tax structure after the war, James L. Wick, editor of "What's Happening in Washington?" urged that new businesses, "many of them to be started by returning soldiers," be aided by the possibility of carrying forward losses for five or six years.

Stuart Chase Speaks.

Several hundred financial executives attending the conference turned today to the consideration of technical problems after last night's dinner program, at which Stuart Chase, economist, spoke generally on the future of American economy, and W. R. Wills, St. Louis radio news analyst, examined Japan's wartime industrial strength.

Chase declared that what he described as a "compensatory economy" was "probably the next step for America." This is an economy, he explained, "where the business men largely own and operate the means of production, with the Government underwriting full employment through control of financial machinery, public works and social security."

Observing that Sweden has been practicing such an economy for many years, Chase predicted that the political pressure to effectuate a "compensatory" program would come from several directions: "from 12 million men in the armed forces; from 20 million war workers; from organized business, which has proclaimed repeatedly that if a high level of employment is not maintained after the war, free enterprise, as we have known it, cannot long survive; from farmers faced with prices falling headlong, as in 1920, and from the man in the street, who has not failed to notice that when spending for war began, unemployment presently vanished."

He contrasted the compensatory society with the "completely rationed" and the "completely socialized" societies, on the one hand, and with the "free competitive society, where the government acts as umpire only," on the other.

Japan Industrially Strong.

Wills, who edited a newspaper in Tokyo before Pearl Harbor, portrayed Japan today as industrially unweakened. "In fact, she has everything that we have," he said, warning that it "will be a matter of years" before the Japanese are overcome.

An admonition against the temptation of "various crackpot schemes which will be presented to us" was given by the dinner chairman and president of the Controllers Institute of America, John C. Naylor of St. Louis, who is vice-president and controller of the Pet Milk Co. here. He called upon his audience to recognize that "we are headed for a most difficult period."

cratic Leader Barkley had deplored "frenzied indignation" and asserted that it was "a matter for the courts and not for the Senate."

Senator Capper (Rep.), Kansas, assailing the seizure, asserted the people "do not believe that it is necessary to conquer the United States inorder to defeat the Axis enemy."

Senator Brooks (Rep.), Chicago, said the "unwarranted use of fixed bayonets" by troops at the Chicago plant "tears at the very vitals of American liberty."

COUNSEL FOR WARD QUESTIONS LEGALITY

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. today challenged President Roosevelt's right to place the concern's Chicago plants under Federal control.

Harold Smith, attorney for the mail-order and mercantile firm, told United States District Judge William H. Holly:

"The substance of the Government's case is this—the President has the power to confiscate Ward's private property because of the existence of a national emergency which invests him, as commander in chief of the armed forces, with extraordinary and terrifying power of seizure.

"This position is fallacious and no law or constitutional provision confers such a power or authorizes its exercise."

Attorney General Biddle had argued yesterday that the President, as commander in chief of the Army and Navy, has "a great constitutional reserve of power."

He asserted that the President's authority was sufficient to order the facilities placed under Federal control and that "no business of any kind is immune from that power."

Biddle asserted: "In time of war, the courts will not substitute their judgment for that of the President, or review his determination as to the gravity of the emergency or the necessity of the taking of the particular property."

Constitutional Grounds.

Smith asserted today that the firm attacked the validity of the seizure on these constitutional grounds:

"It is an unreasonable seizure contrary to the Fourth Article of the Bill of Rights, it deprives them (the owners) of liberty and property without due process of law, and constitutes the taking of private property for public use without just compensation in direct violation of Article Five of the Bill of Rights."

Smith said the Commanded in Chief was entitled to respect, loyalty and co-operation from all citizens, but added: "But I strongly resist and resent any notion that in the guise of his military powers he can ignore the Bill of Rights and arrogate to himself despotic powers against which free people have been protected since the day of Magna Charta, and which are explicitly and unmistakably reserved to the people of the United States in the Bill of Rights."

Arguments Ended.

Arguments were ended at noon on Biddle's petition for an injunction to restrain Ward officers from interfering with Federal operation of the firm's Chicago facilities, taken over with the assistance of soldiers Wednesday night. Judge Holly said he would make his decision Monday.

"We must safeguard our fundamental rights and our freedom from executive abuse," Smith concluded, "otherwise what we gain from the sacrifice of precious blood abroad may be lost by unlawful and arbitrary executive fiat at home."

Biddle asserted the courts have felt that the President had a right to act in an emergency and had not questions his acts in such emergencies.

"Mr. Smith would sweep aside all powers ever taken by any President," Biddle stated. "For example, he would say the President had no right to seize coal mines in an emergency."

Discusses "Reserve Powers."

Biddle argued that the question was not a constitutional issue but a question of whether the President's wartime powers statute specifically recognize "what is called the President's reserve powers."

"If you," Biddle told the Judge, "construe the statute to apply to Montgomery Ward, the case is settled."

Smith appealed to the Judge to settle now "just how far the executive can reach with this dreadful and terrible power."

Smith contended Biddle had been "driven to form his own verbal opinion to justify this action" along a line that "the king can do no wrong."

Smith asserted the Smith-Connally Act limited seizures to factories or mines producing materials needed for the war effort.

"The seizure was a thing that has not been equaled in the history of the country," he said. "Indignation has resulted all over the country and in Congress."

Smith argued that the law conferred seizure power on the President but restricted such power to a plant, mine or facility equipped for the manufacture, production or mining of any articles or materials which may be required for the war effort or may be useful in connection therewith.

He started to read statements of Senators from the April 28 Congressional Record, concerning the seizure, but Judge Holly interrupted with:

"Let me remind you this court will decide this case, Senators cannot be quoted as authorities of law."

Smith referred to Biddle's statement that some of the Ward subsidiaries manufactured farm equipment and fencing, and that one of them—the Hummer Manufacturing Co. in Springfield, Ill.—turned out carburetors, propellers and gun mounts.

'War' Properties Not Seized.

"These properties are not in Chicago," he continued. "They are not among those seized. There is no allegation that their operation was interrupted or that their continued operation is dependent upon operation of the Chicago properties.

"The allegation with respect to properties outside Chicago are calculated to obscure the real issue and to bolster a defective case in an unlawful seizure. They have no bearing on the question of whether Ward's nonwar properties are within section three of the act (War Labor Disputes Act)."

Bricker Says Case Is Warning of "Drift Toward Absolutism."

CINCINNATI, O., May 2 (AP).—Gov. John W. Bricker last night termed Government seizure of the Montgomery Ward plant in Chicago and the forcible ejection of the company's head by soldiers "an ominous warning of our tragic drift toward absolutism."

"If you want a convincing example of where bureaucracy inevitably leads, you need only recall what happened at the Montgomery Ward store in Chicago last week," the Republican presidential candidate said in a speech before the American Mining Congress in convention here.

"The use of troops to carry a business man forcibly from his office could only happen in an administration that had completely lost its perspective and its respect for judicial processes. The courts were still open for the settlement of such disputes. The incident is an ominous warning of our tragic drift toward absolutism."

U. S. Steel Stockholders 'Proud' to Re-elect Avery to Board.

HOBOKEN, N. J., May 2 (AP).—Stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation yesterday re-elected Sewell L. Avery a director and approved a resolution declaring they were "proud" to have him on the board.

The stockholder who wrote the resolution wanted to go farther and praise the Montgomery Ward & Co. chairman "because of his valiant and persistent fight in behalf of the fundamental rights of American industry," but Irving S. Olds, steel corporation chairman, who presided, declined to permit the complimentary resolution to be voted as originally framed.

Olds said Avery, a member of Big Steel's board since 1931, was chosen because of his experience and his executive ability and that his recent conflict with the Government over a dispute with the War Labor Board, had no relevancy to his re-election yesterday.

Congress Urged to Restudy Emergency Powers of Roosevelt.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 (AP).—Senator Hawkes (Rep.), New Jersey, predicting that the courts will sustain the Government's seizure of the Montgomery Ward Co. plant, says it is the duty of Congress "to restudy every emergency power granted to the President."

Congress, he told the Union League at a reception in his honor last night, "should write a new law to the effect that the President can seize no property in the United States that is not directly engaged in producing war materials until these cases have been decided by the courts."

FREE SPEECH RIGHT OF EMPLOYERS CITED

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 (AP). —The Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals took under consideration yesterday a petition by the National Labor Relations Board that the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Co., and its president, Edward G. Budd, be adjudged in contempt of court for allegedly violating an order by the court last Nov. 15, which prohibited the company from interfering in any way with the employes' right to choose a bargaining agent.

Judge Charles Alvin Jones observed in the hearing of arguments that Budd "has the legal right, under the first amendment to the Constitution to express his like or dislike for labor unions."

Judge Jones sat with Judges Herbert F. Goodrich and J. Cullen Ganey.

A. Norman Somers, NLRB attorney, told the court that Budd sent a letter to all employes last Feb. 29, expressing his opinion of the court decision and his views on "outside unions." He said this was done in an "indirect adroit way," and that its effect was to "belittle the court's decision, undermine its effect, and whittle away the assurance given the employes" that their rights would be protected.

Somers asserted that this kind of letter was being used by employers in "increasing numbers," and that unless the courts stop the practice, "We are about ready to throw up the sponge in our efforts to make court decrees effective."

Judge Jones said it seemed to him the court was being asked to enter the "psychological field," and that he was unable to see any contempt, since the NLRB had offered no evidence that the Budd company or its president had committed any act conflicting with the court order.

"What Budd does in his letter is to express a preference for an inside union," Somers said.

"Well, to stop him from doing that, wouldn't it be stopping him from the right of free speech?" asked Judge Jones. "He has the legal right, under the first amendment to the Constitution, to express his like or dislike for labor unions, or anything else."

FOREMEN ASK IF GO-TO-WORK ORDER IS UNION RECOGNITION

DETROIT, May 2 (AP).—Striking war plant foremen replied to a back-to-work order from the War Labor Board today with a demand that the WLB state whether its order constituted union recognition.

Directing 1600 striking foremen of eight plants to resume work immediately, WLB Chairman William H. Davis said the walkout was likely to have serious consequences on war production. In reply, Robert H. Keys, president of the Foreman's Association of America, independent union, said he could not advise a return to work until he had an answer as to whether the order meant recognition.

The union, striking at plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. and the Hudson Motor Car Co., complained of grievances and said the companies refused to grant recognition. Company spokesmen said production was cut as much as 50 per cent. Keys told Davis in a telegram that part of the blame for the walkout lay with the WLB because the board "has failed for months to act in our cases."

GOVERNOR DISAVOWS CONTRIBUTION NOTE

Denies Knowledge of Campaign Solicitation of State Grain Employes.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 2.—Gov. Donnell said today he had not authorized, nor had advance knowledge of a memorandum sent to employes of the State Grain and Warehouse Department by Commissioner Turner B. Morton, suggesting "voluntary" contributions to the campaign fund of the Governor for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

While the memorandum, sent to about 125 department employes, said the contributions would be entirely voluntary, Morton's message said "Campaigns take lots of money and all contributions will be appreciated."

"I did not authorize issuance of this letter and did not know about it until after it had been issued," Gov. Donnell told a Post-Dispatch reporter today.

"I see no objection to a contribution from anyone who wishes to make a voluntary one," the Governor said, "but we will not put on any compulsion, direct or indirect. I have declined to give to my campaign treasurer, Walter R. Mayne of St. Louis, a list of my own appointees."

Donnell said Mayne had asked for the list of appointees, and a list of persons not connected with the State Government who had indicated they were favorable to the Governor's candidacy.

The memorandum by Morton, an appointee of the Governor, to the department employes, said several employes had asked him where contributions to the Governor's campaign fund could be sent.

"With this in mind, and knowing that the earlier contributions are made the more good they will do," Morton added, "I feel I would not be doing my duty if I failed to pass this information on and assist in any way I could in making it easier, that those who wish may have the opportunity of expressing their appreciation for the position they hold by contributing to his campaign fund."

The memorandum supplied the name of Mayne, as treasurer, and his address at 506 Olive street, St. Louis. In one corner was a convenient form, for transmitting contributions to Mayne.

"I will willingly handle any contributions sent direct to me," Morton said, "but I, like Gov. Donnell, feel that all contributions should be strictly voluntary, so therefore, believe they should be sent direct to Mr. Mayne."

crumbling levees and cause a break.

J. W. Burch, State Agricultural Extension director at Columbia, Mo., estimated 500,000 acres of Missouri bottom land has been flooded, including 125,000 acres of wheat and 15,000 acres of alfalfa. Muddy fields, he added, would put farmers hopelessly behind in planting oats and other field crops to alleviate the shortage of livestock feed.

Two carloads of wheat are to be sent into Monroe and Randolph counties, Illinois, by the Commodity Credit Corporation as emergency feed for livestock in flooded areas. The wheat will be available for sale to farmers, the State AAA headquarters at Decatur announced.

The slow fall of the rivers was being watched today by hundreds of families awaiting a chance to return to their homes. Many of them are being cared for in American Red Cross shelters, others have moved in with friends.

A crest of 37.5 feet in the Mississippi River at Chester, Ill., was expected today and a crest of 40.5 feet is predicted to reach Cape Girardeau tomorrow. The river reached a crest of 39.11 feet at St. Louis Sunday, the highest since the 41.39-foot crest in June, 1844.

CHARTER GROUP FOR APPOINTIVE HEAD OF SCHOOLS

Sustains Report Calling for Bipartisan Board, Which Will Select Commissioner.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 2.—Voting by a decisive majority to abandon the system of popular election of the State Superintendent of Schools in favor of the appointive system, the Constitutional Convention last night gave an encouraging indication of a trend toward progressive innovations in government.

The defeat of the hide-bound politicians in their efforts to wreck the Educational Committee's recommendations cannot be accepted as a full test on the adoption of the cabinet form of government, but affords something of a basis on which to judge the views of the delegates.

By a vote of 40 to 18, with 25 delegates absent, the convention rejected an amendment to strike out the committee's recommendation for the appointment of a State Commissioner of Education and to restore the present constitutional provision for a Superintendent of Schools elected on a political party ticket.

Bipartisan Education Board.

The plan thus approved for inclusion in the proposed new Constitution provides for the appointment by the Governor of a bipartisan Board of Education of eight members. This board will select the Commissioner of Education.

An argument advanced by the opponents of the plan was that in Missouri the office of State Superintendent of Schools, although filled by political election, had invariably been filled by able men, who had ignored politics, and that partisan politics had not been important in their election.

These arguments overlooked two items in Missouri political history, the defeat of State Superintendent Charles A. Lee for renomination in 1934 because ex-Boss Tom Pendergast in Kansas City resented the fact that Lee had supported Russell L. Dearmont for the nomination for Governor in 1932, and the fact that Pendergast in 1938 forced Superintendent Lloyd W. King to give a political indorsement of James V. Billings for the Democratic nomination for Supreme Judge.

The convention acted promptly on the subject of the State school system, completing consideration of that section of the educational article in a little more than two hours.

Opponents of the plan first directed their fire against a provision of the committee's report permitting the Board of Education to fix the salary of the commissioner, taking the position that this power should be in the Legislature.

Board to Fix Salary.

Chairman Alva F. Lindsay of the committee, supported by other members, pointed out that without that power the commission would be unable to bid for the services of the more desirable men. The convention voted to retain the power in the board.

Solely from the standpoint of expedience the committee had included a requirement that the commissioner be a resident of Missouri, holding that there might be public opposition to going outside the State. A motion by Delegate Nacy of Jefferson City to strike out this provision and make no requirement for Missouri residence was defeated.

Limit on School Loans.

The convention voted today to protect county school funds from poor realty loans by requiring that the funds be invested only in bonds of the United States, the State, municipalities and school districts of Missouri or in securities guaranteed by the Government.

Under the present constitution, the county school funds must be invested in unencumbered real estate worth twice the value of the loan. These funds have been depleted in recent years in most counties of the State, because county courts, often to pay political debts, have made loans without the required security.

A provision recommended by the education committee to divert revenue from fines, penalties and forfeitures into the county treasury instead of the county school fund was defeated. The new section gives the counties the option of investing its school funds in government bonds or using the assets directly as they are received. The section, as approved, by the convention requires the liquidation of all existing real estate loans without extension.

PULITZER PRIZE AWARDS FOR 1943; WHO'S WHO ON WINNERS

NEW YORK TIMES IS GIVEN PUBLIC SERVICE MEDAL FOR SURVEY ON HISTORY TEACHING

War Correspondents Ernie Pyle and Daniel de Luce Cited for Dispatches — Photographer Risked Life for Picture at Tarawa —Other Winners.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 2.

"THE most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper" in 1943 was that of the New York Times in making a survey of the teaching of American history, the Pulitzer Prize Award Committee announced yesterday. The Times will receive a gold medal costing $500. The series of articles on the teaching of history in schools and colleges throughout the United States was written by Benjamin Fine, a reporter on the Times.

Ernie Pyle, whose dispatches in the Post-Dispatch tell the human side of the war and of every-day events in the lives of fighting men, was awarded the prize for distinguished correspondence. In making the $500 award, the committee said it was based on "fair, judicious, well-balanced and well-informed interpretative writing which shall make clear the significance of the subject covered in the correspondence of which shall promote international understanding and appreciation."

Two members of the Associated Press staff were honored: Daniel de Luce, a war correspondent who made a daring trip into Nazi-dominated Yugoslavia for first-hand stories of resistance by Marshal Tito's forces, and Frank Filan, a photographer who risked his life to get the photograph "Tarawa Island." (Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

In the journalism awards, Byron Price, director of the Office of Censorship, won a special citation for the creation and administration of the newspaper and radio codes. To this announcement there was appended a statement that the members of the advisory board of Columbia's Graduate School of Journalism "deplore certain acts and policies of Army and Navy censorship in the handling of news at the source and for the unreasonable suppression of information to which the American people are entitled."

Each of the awards carries a $500 prize. Other awards were:

Clifford K. Berryman of the Washington Evening Star, for a distinguished example of a cartoonist's work during the year as exemplified by his cartoon, "But Where Is the Boat Going?" published on Aug. 28, 1943.

Earle L. Bunker of the Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald, for his photograph, entitled "Home Coming," published July 16, 1943. (Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Telegraphic Reporting.

Dewey L. Fleming of the Sun (Baltimore, Md.), for distinguished example of telegraphic reporting on national affairs, published in daily newspapers in the United States during the year.

Paul Schoenstein, city editor of the New York Journal-American, and reporters who co-operated in the development and publication of a news story Aug. 12, 1943, which saved the life of a 2-year-old girl by obtaining penicillin, the award for distinguished example of a reporter's work. In this category the test is accuracy and terseness, the preference being given to news stories published in a daily newspaper prepared under the pressure of edition time and relating to matters of special interest of a local or regional character.

In Field of Letters.

Martin Flavin for a distinguished novel published during the year by an American author, preferably dealing with American life, awarded for "Journey in the Dark," published by Harper & Brothers.

Merle Curti, for a distinguished book of the year on the history of the United States, awarded for "The Growth of American Thought," published by Harper & Brothers.

Carleton Mabee, for a distinguished American biography, awarded for "The American Leonardo: The Life of Samuel F. B. Morse," published by Alfred A. Knopf, Inc.

Stephen Vincent Benet, who died March 13, 1943, posthumously, for a distinguished volume of verse, awarded for "Western Star," published by Farrar & Rinehart, Inc.

Music.

Howard Hanson, $500 for distinguished musical composition in the larger forms of chamber, orchestral or choral music, or for an operatic work (including ballet), performed or published during the year by an American composer, awarded for his "Symphony No. 4, Opus 34," performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra Dec. 3, 1943.

A special prize of $500 was awarded to Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II for their operetta "Oklahoma!" produced by the Theater Guild and presented at the St. James Theater since it opened on March 31, 1943. There was no award for an original American play performed in New York, "which shall represent in marked fashion the educational value and power of the stage, preferably dealing with American life." The prize to "Oklahoma!" was awarded instead.

In declining to grant an award for an American play, the advisory board followed the lead of the New York Drama Critics' Circle. The critics almost agreed on Lillian Hellman's "The Searching Wind" as their first choice, but the play lost by one vote. No voting results were made public by the Columbia trustees.

Traveling scholarships of $1500 each, it was announced, would be awarded later. These will go to the three high-ranking students in the Graduate School of Journalism. There was no award of an annual scholarship having a value of $15000 to an art student in America certified as "the most promising and deserving" by the National Academy of Design.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF AWARD RECIPIENTS IN JOURNALISM AND LETTERS

Henry J. Haskell, Editorial Writer, and Poet Stephen Vincent Benet Are Winners for Second Time—Work of Several Honored on Penicillin Story.

NEW YORK, May 2.

FOLLOWING are sketches of the winners of the Pulitzer Prize awards announced yesterday:

Ernie Pyle

Ernie Pyle is the exponent of the "human side" of the war news and has seen as much action perhaps as any other correspondent in the war. He was given the Purple Heart for wounds suffered in action and was one of the war correspondents who narrowly escaped death on the Anzio beachhead when a German shell demolished the house in which they were staying. His daily columns in the Post-Dispatch tell of the reactions of American soldiers under fire, of their personal bravery, hardships, and humor. He went into North Africa with the Allied invasion, and since then has been with American troops in Sicily, Salerno and finally the Anzio beachhead. His latest dispatches are from the vicinity of Naples.

Daniel de Luce

As a war correspondent, De Luce was driven out of the Balkans by the Germans in 1941. Last October he dared to go back and he came out again with the first eyewitness accounts of events there in two and a half years. Risking death or capture by German forces, De Luce crossed the Adriatic from Italy to Yugoslavia in a small fishing boat with a wheezy engine and there gathered first-hand information on the activities of the Partisans who are fighting the Germans. Defying the Axis to get the truth behind the enemy lines is nothing new for De Luce, who has been driven out of Poland, Greece and Burma by the Germans, Italians and Japanese. De Luce was born in Yuma, Ariz., June 8, 1911, and joined the A. P. in San Francisco in 1929. He is a graduate of the University of California and is a Phi Beta Kappa. At present he is a member of the A. P. staff on the Anzio beachhead.

Byron Price

Price began newspaper work in Indiana in 1909, joined the United Press in 1912 for a brief period before becoming an Associated Press employe. From 1922 until 1937 he was connected with the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, the last 10 years of that period as chief of the bureau. In 1937 he was appointed executive news editor of the A. P., in New York. President Roosevelt appointed him Director of the Office of Censorship in December 1941.

Dewey L. Fleming

Chief of the Baltimore Sunpapers' Washington Bureau since November, 1941, Fleming was born in Whitmer, W. Va., in 1898. He was graduated from Davis and Elkins College, at Elkins, in 1918, and did his first newspaper work in Elkins. He is a graduate of the Pulitzer School of Journalism, Columbia University. Fleming went to Baltimore in 1922 to work on the American. Since joining the Sun in 1923, he has served in New York, Chicago and London as well as in Washington. In 1941, Fleming was named a member of a new standing committee of correspondents to govern the Senate and House press galleries.

Henry J. Haskell

Editor of the Kansas City Star, Haskell is the son of a Congregational missionary assigned to Bulgaria. His boyhood in the Balkans brought him an interest in international affairs that made him a two-time Pulitzer Prize winner. He was born in 1874 while his father was in this country on leave. In 1933 the Kansas City Star received an award for a series of editorials on national and international topics, written by Haskell. His comments on the war and related international problems brought the present award. In February, 1898, a friend tipped Haskell—then a $10 a week reporter on the Kansas City World—that there was to be an opening on the Star's telegraph desk. He took the job, just in time to get in on handling the story of the sinking of the Maine. He became editor of the Star in 1928, and as an avocation has written two books on Roman history.

In 1901 Haskell married Isabel Cummings. She died in 1923. His second wife, whom he married in 1926, was Katherine Wright, sister of Orville and Wilbur Wright, who died in 1929. In 1933 he married Agnes Lee Hadley, widow of former Gov. Herbert S. Hadley.

Paul Schoenstein

City editor of the New York Journal-American since 1938, Schoenstein was in charge of the paper's coverage of the Wayne Lonergan murder case, during which the paper claimed a two-hour beat on Lonergan's confession. He also covered the Lindbergh kidnaping and other important news stories. Schoenstein, 40 years old, was makeup editor, night managing editor, and assistant city editor before he became city editor of the newspaper. Cooperating with him on the penicillin story were Assistant City Editor James D. Horan and Reporters Neil Maguire, Charles E. Davis Jr., Syd Livingston and Robert Spellman, and Photographers William Hearfield and Leonard Morgan.

Frank Filan

Filan was born in Brooklyn, Dec. 7, 1904. He entered A. P. service at Los Angeles in October, 1929, and got his first real taste of war photography in 1942 when he had to jump from an Army plane that crashed in training over California. Recently he distinguished himself with his coverage of the invasion of the Marshall Islands.

Earle L. Bunker

"Buddy" Bunker entered newspaper work as an office boy for the old Omaha Bee-News in 1929. He joined the photography staff of the newspaper in 1930. After the Bee-News suspended publication in 1937 Bunker free-lanced for a while, then became a member of the World-Herald staff in 1938. He is 32 years old. Reached at home while on vacation, his first reaction to the news that he had won the prize was: "Boy—wait until I sit down." Then he added: "I'm very happy, very happy." A native of Bridgewater, S. D., he has spent most of his life in Omaha.

Clifford K. Berryman

Berryman is probably best known as the originator of the "Teddy Bear." He got the bear idea while accompanying President Theodore Roosevelt on a Mississippi hunting trip in 1902. Roosevelt had no luck, and someone tied a cub bear near his tent, urging him to shoot it. Roosevelt declined, remarking that if he did, he'd never be able to face his children again. Berryman's cartoon the next day portrayed a Teddy bear, which became his trade mark and was reproduced in fuzzy little animals for children. He never capitalized on the idea. Kentucky-born, Berryman began sketching as a lad. From a Patent Office draftsman, he became cartoonist with the Washington Post. He joined the Star in 1907, and for many years drew a cartoon daily, although in recent years he has shared the cartooning assignment with his son, Jim. Now 75, he has drawn more than 100,000 cartoons in the last 50 years.

Martin Flavin

Before starting his writing career in 1926, Martin Flavin worked 20 years with a Chicago wallpaper firm and rose from office boy to vice-president. He has written several plays, including "Children of the Moon" and "The Criminal Code," performed on Broadway in the 1920s. "Journey in the Dark," his third novel, won the $10,000 Harper prize novel award last year. Previous novels are "Corporal Cat" and "Mr. Littlejohn." Flavin was born in San Francisco, Nov. 2, 1883. He moved to Chicago as a boy and attended the University of Chicago. He now lives in Carmel, Cal., and has a 1300-acre sheep ranch near there. He has been married three times and has three children, a daughter and two sons. One son is in the Navy and the other in the Army.

Rodgers and Hammerstein

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II both attended Columbia University, where Rodgers was the first freshman permitted to help write a Varsity show. Hammerstein, of a distinguished American theatrical family, studied law for five years before helping to write a Varsity show. Then he left school. Rodgers once teamed up with the late Lorenz Hart, with whom he wrote many hits.

Rodgers wrote the music for such popular shows as "Dearest Enemy," "The Girl Friend," "The Connecticut Yankee," "Jumbo," "On Your Toes," "Babes in Arms," "I Married an Angel," "The Boys From Syracuse" and "By Jupiter."

Hammerstein, after leaving Columbia, became an assistant stage manager for an Ed Wynn show and then started writing tunes. He

'Axis Sally's' Music Good, but Jokes Spoil Nazi Program, Writes Pyle

By ERNIE PYLE

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

IN ITALY, May 2 (By Wireless). ONE of our diversions while at the Anzio beachhead was listening to "Axis Sally" on the radio.

Doubtless you've heard of her back home. Hers is one of several German propaganda programs in English directed at the morale of our troops. The thing is wonderful but as far as I can see a complete failure, because:

1. Only a tiny few of our troops ever hear the radio.

2. For those who do, Sally's music is so good and her jokes so pathetically corny that we listen just to be entertained. We feel liks cads for enjoying Sally's music while being unconvinced by her words.

Sally comes on the air five or six times a day, starting around 6 a. m. and lasting through till 2 a. m. A guy named George serves as Sally's end man. Some of the programs are directed at the British troops, some at ours.

Actually, it isn't the same girl on all the programs, although they all call themselves Sally. The program is entitled "Jerry's Front."

Early in each program they sing the great German war song, "Lili Marlene," which we all love and which we've practically taken away from the Germans as our national overseas song.

Then Sally reads a list of prisoners' names, and just as she finishes a female quartet swings off into a snappy version of "Happy Days Are Here Again." The idea being, you see, that it's all over now for these prisoners and they're safe and happy, so why don't we all come and surrender and be happy too.

The rest of the program is divided between the by-play of Sally and George and the playing of German and American music, including such things as "Star Dust" and all of Bing Crosby's records.

The news is actually funny. For example, they would tell us of ships sunk at Anzio that day. From where we sat, we could spit into the waters of Anzio, and we knew that what Sally said was not true.

Both Sally and George speak good English and claim to be Americans. But they do make odd mistakes. They pronounce Houston, Tex., as though it were "House-ton," and they speak of Columbus Square in New York when they mean Columbus Circle. It's tiny little mistakes like that which nullify a propaganda program.

I GET lots of letters from soldiers mentioning their little grievances and desires. Here are just a few.

An ack-ack gunner writes that he has just listened to a BBC program in which parents in England send messages to their men overseas. He continues:

"As far as I know, our boys have no program like that, and while I was listening I thought how wonderful it would be if I could turn a dial and listen to my mom say hello."

The Fifth Army has created a "Fifth Army Plaque," which is an award to noncombatant units that have done meritorious service. Now the boys of one outfit are hurt because they are included in Ruined Cameras, Won Prize.

Filan ruined both of his cameras in a mad dash to the beach with one of the first groups of Marines landing on Tarawa last November and he came out with some of the greatest photos of the Pacific — taken with a borrowed camera.

He almost lost his life in the undertaking. Although weighted down with equipment, he turned back to help a man who had been shot and who was trying to return to a landing boat several hundred yards away.

After going back a considerable distance under heavy fire, Filan said they never would make the boat. He persuaded the injured man they should try for the beach again. They made it but Filan often went over his head in water as he stepped into bomb craters beneath the waves. His cameras were ruined.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, at Pearl Harbor, commended Filan for his "inspiring devotion to duty." The letter of commendation said Filan went ashore with the second battalion of the Eighth Marine regiment during "probably the most hotly contested landing ever engaged in by our forces."

'Failure' That Succeeded.

"Buddy" Bunker well remembers the moment he snapped the prize picture, which has taken several other prizes—because he wasn't sure at first he'd have a picture and because it was his second try.

Lt. Col. Robert Moore, a war hero, stepped off the train at Villisca, Ia. Bunker took a shot, but the flashlight failed. He threw the offending bulb under the train, and by the time he had reloaded the faces which newspapers usually request were turned—but the poignant scene which has won honors was before him.

Col. Moore was hungrily hugging his 7-year-old daughter, Nancy. His wife stood near, sobbing with joy. An unknown little boy, finger in mouth, was popeyed with amazement.

The timing had to be perfect or the picture would be lost. Bunker pressed the automatic release. The light flashed—but weakly. The group broke up. People rushed in. The moment was gone, and Bunker was uncertain. In the darkroom he gave the negative "the works" and sighed with relief as it came out perfect.

But he still remembers that someone asked: "Haven't you got one that shows their faces?"

Berryman, informed that his cartoon "But Where Is the Boat Going?" had won a Pulitzer award, couldn't remember what it was about or when he drew it.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

For Limiting Use of the Mails

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your recent editorial, "A Quack Remedy," (April 25) on the bill introduced by Congressman Walter A. Lynch of New York and recommended for adoption by 17 other members of Congress, is very disquieting and out of tune with your usual policy.

The evil this bill is designed to attack is widespread and growing. Numerous publications, well financed and distributed, are flooding the country disseminating Nazism and Fascism garbed in George Washington's cloak and draped in an American flag. These publications preach hatred and cruelty against minority groups on racial and religious grounds, and these groups, under the law as it stands, cannot defend themselves in any court

The remedies you suggest in your editorial definitely fall within the category of "too little, too late."

You argue that if the Lynch bill became law, it would result in a sweeping grant of power to the Government amounting to censorship; that it would be difficult to distinguish between legitimate criticism and defamatory matter.

This contention appears to be without merit. You are undoubtedly aware of the existing mailing limitations as to obscene or fraudulent matter. No reasonable person ever complained of these laws as constituting a censorship, and no postal inspector ever had any difficulty in drawing the line between an honest statement and fraud.

The Lynch bill, in my judgment, is a most timely legislative act which, if prudently enforced, would assist in weeding out the poisonous growths planted on the soil of America by men of ill will whose aim is to see the Republic discredited, desecrated and destroyed.

ALEXANDER M. GOODMAN.

Won't Move to the Rear

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will an officer have to be placed on our busy busses and street cars to force back to the rear the men and women who positively will not go to the rear although the operator is kindly pleading for room for the bunch of war workers he sees ahead waiting for a ride?

MAX.

Says U. S. Is Right in Ward Case

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It must be a tremendous shock to Sewell Avery and the Montgomery Ward Co. and others of their kind to find the United States Government is more powerful than they. I wonder if Mr. Avery ever heard about eight or nine million young men being forcibly taken out of college and away from all those they love.

These young men are dying in foreign lands to prevent the Nazis and the Japs from dropping bombs on the Montgomery Ward Co.'s warehouses, and taking over their business, not temporarily but for keeps.

Ninety per cent of these fighting boys own no warehouses, banks or office buildings and very little wealth to protect. They are giving their all for the love of their country so that the Montgomery Wards can continue a profitable business, and the Sewell Averys can live in luxury. Our Government is licking the Nazis and the Japs, so I guess we can take on Mr. Avery and the Montgomery Ward Co. It will not change the situation much.

Does Mr. Avery feel human life is so cheap that it can be drafted and sacrificed, and property is so sacred that it cannot be even regulated in wartime?

JOHN E. MOONEY.

What to Do About Dogs?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The dog quarantine is a good idea, but it is too bad all must suffer. I bought a license for my dog, but someone left the gate open and he got out and the dog catcher got him, with his new license. Now I have six children crying for their dog. I have two boys serving their country. This dog was their pet. It will be hard to tell them about their dog.

A FRIEND OF DOGS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It has been said, and proved many times, that man's best friend is his dog. But because some poor, neglected dog sometimes becomes rabid, all dogs are condemned. If those responsible for this regulation think they are giving the people of St. Louis a fair deal, they are all wrong. I am thankful the people still have the privilege of voting every few years.

EVERYDAY READER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If people who own dogs are not willing to keep their dogs in their own yards, then they should be compelled to do so.

Recently a neighbor's dog entered our yards and bit my 3-year-old daughter. It was found that this dog was rabid, much to the owner's surprise. If the people who are complaining about the dog quarantine could have seen the abdomen of my child after 14 Pasteur treatments, if they could have heard her cries, they would not be so quick to condemn the city for this regulation.

Be kind to animals, but don't forget our children. We love them, too; more than people love their dogs.

MRS. D. DONAHUE.

The Cartel Is Monopoly

The cartel is nothing other than monopoly under a fancy name. It is what was in an earlier period called a "trust," and is the embodiment of practices which once were the object of bold punitive action by our Federal Government. Its counterpart in American domestic industry was extremely unpopular in the trust-busting days of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Hence considerable satisfaction is to be derived from the complaint filed by the Department of Justice this week in United States District Court in New York seeking dissolution of alleged illegal contracts and agreements by which six American companies and four foreign concerns are charged with having operated as a cartel to create "non-competitive marketing areas" in the manufacture and distribution of matches.

The excellent exposition of the cartel by Charles G. Ross in Sunday's Post-Dispatch makes it clear that this recently much publicized institution is simply the old-fashioned trust expanded to bring world markets as well as domestic industries under its domination. Its purpose is to eliminate competition. This means to control and restrict production, to divide up marketing territories and to sustain prices at a level satisfactory to the parties to the cartel.

For the individual, the cartel, or world trust, means higher prices and less employment; for our nation, as it has operated in the fields of rubber, chemicals, metals and optical instruments, for example, it has meant serious exposure to danger in time of war. It has caused shortages in time of emergency, which only the most determined efforts could overcome.

The real purpose of the cartel, whether it is an association of independent concerns for common action, or a combination under a joint financial control, is to make certain that satisfactory profits are enjoyed by owners. Widespread dissemination of assertions that the cartel system eliminates competitive "wastes" and thereby holds down prices is simply deceptive propaganda, intended to draw attention away from the evils of monopoly.

The intensive promotion of the cartel idea in other nations, notably Great Britain, is a warning to the people of America to be on guard if they would preserve the benefits of the free competitive system.

Completion of Canol

Canadian and American officials gathered yesterday at remote Whitehorse, in Yukon Territory, for ceremonies, speeches and messages of congratulation. The occasion was the opening of an oil refinery, linked by a 595-mile pipe line to the Canol field, a project completed at a cost of $130,000,000 in 22 months of work by thousands of men.

It was an occasion worth celebrating, but the date on which it came confirms the Truman committee's criticisms of how Army authorities undertook and handled the project. It was launched and justified as an emergency measure, at a time when enemy forces were still in the Aleutians. Fortunately, the fighting forces were able to get plane and motor vehicle fuel elsewhere. Had they been compelled to wait until completion of this grandiose project, the Japs would still be on Kiska and Attu, and possibly on the Alaskan mainland as well.

If its small-gauge pipe line is enlarged, the Canol project may have postwar value. But its usefulness as a wartime emergency project is on a par with the sub-zero temperatures of the region where it was built.

Ernie Pyle Deserves It

The Pulitzer prizes in journalism have honored year by year a great deal of outstanding work in the newspaper world, and they do so again this year. It is doubtful, however, that any selection, past or present, could inspire such widespread and hearty satisfaction as the choice of Ernie Pyle to win the 1944 award for distinguished correspondence.

Mr. Pyle's daily articles from the war fronts in North Africa, Sicily and Italy have been admirable because of their insight, their simplicity, their essential humanness. They delight not only readers at home but, severest of all tests, the men in service overseas. The dispatches are often, indeed, just what these men would like to report to the home folks if they had the time and the talent.

When Ernie Pyle writes a dispatch, it is the G I or the gob himself who speaks. This unusual correspondent is glad to let others interview the Generals, interpret the communiques and speculate on military or diplomatic moves. He writes about keeping warm in a foxhole, the scarcity of eggs, the facilities for laundry, the sensations of riding in a jeep under fire or going ashore in an LCI—just what the families and friends of service men would like most to know.

"Distinguished" is a large, impressive adjective to be worn by so modest and unassuming a writer as Ernie Pyle, but he has earned the honor.

There's no end to the Japs' aping of the United States. Now they're saying the co-prosperity sphere is just around the corner.

The Army Engineers' Fallacy

Navigation interests which are currently obstructing flood control—particularly the Mississippi Valley Association—received some good advice from Col. Malcolm Elliott, division engineer of the United States Army Engineers, in an address to the St. Louis chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers last week. "Navigation interests," said Col. Elliott, "would be very foolish if they interposed any obstacle to irrigation. The best thing they could do would be to promote a prosperous Middle West by irrigating land."

Col. Elliott distinctly did not go on to say that the Army Engineers would be very foolish if they interposed any obstacle to irrigation. Inasmuch as the Army Engineers are asking Congress to reserve for navigation virtually the entire average flow of the Missouri River, and inasmuch as no greater obstacle to irrigation could be interposed than a law taking over all the water for something else, it is just as well that Col. Elliott did not say so.

What he did not say, however, is eloquent. What is sauce for the navigation interests is sauce for the Army Engineers. The Army Engineers have already been very foolish by interposing an obstacle to irrigation. They stand convicted out of their own mouths.

Airport Progress and Delay

The Municipal Airport Commission made a decision yesterday that deserves applause from every citizen who wants St. Louis looming large on postwar air maps. Unanimously it approved the appointment of an engineer as assistant to Mr. Kinsey. If the Board of Estimate and Apportionment adds its approval, as it undoubtedly will do, it means that the city will have a full-time aviation expert on the job, master-planning the development of airports here and representing St. Louis in Washington when CAA plans and appropriations are being considered there.

This move, recognizing both the executive duties of Mr. Kinsey and the burden of additional work that he carries as president of the Board of Public Service, calls for two things: immediate action by Mr. Kinsey and Mayor Kaufmann in making the appointment; approval of a salary of $7500 a year for the new assistant to make sure that a man of the best training and experience is employed. There is absolutely no excuse for delay in selecting him. Half a dozen competent aviation engineers, several of them now employed by CAA and familiar with its operation, are already available.

Two less progressive aspects of the city's airport planning came to light at yesterday's meeting. The first is that the approval of United States Army Engineers for a levee around Columbia Bottoms has not yet been sought, although action was promised last January. The second is that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has not yet been asked to approve the $5000 voted for a preliminary engineering survey of an over-all airport program, although the commission voted such action two weeks ago.

The board is expected to take action on Thursday. Nevertheless, valuable time has been lost. CAA, according to word from Washington, will have its budget request in final form by June 15. If St. Louis expects to be represented, tentative plans here must be drawn up by Messrs. Horner and Shifrin before that date.

This is no time for pokiness. The city has got to move ahead, fast, while days and weeks of airport planning are at a premium.

A Plan to Save City Money

A plan that promises to save St. Louis around $27,900 a year, with no sacrifice whatever, has just reached the ordinance-drafting stage, two and a half years after it was proposed by the City Survey Commission set up by former Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann. This is the plan for self-insurance of municipal property, by establishing a fund from which the city can meet its own losses, and thus to eliminate the annual premium payments to commercial companies.

The survey report estimated that the city over a 40-year period had recovered only 6.9 cents in compensation for losses out of every dollar it had paid in premiums. This is poor business from any point of view. Comptroller Nolte's plan is for an appropriation of $50,000 annually until an adequate insurance fund is accumulated, and then to drop the policies now carried. This is a sensible idea, and the sooner it is enacted by the Aldermen, the better. In fact, it should have been enacted years ago.

Schleifer's Latest Blast

On the day before he gave up his office as a subordinate executive in the Office of Defense Transportation, Fred A. Schleifer, wrote an 8000-word letter to Mayor Kaufmann continuing his intemperate attack on the St. Louis smoke ordinance. It was no more logical or factual than his earlier outbursts which showed so plainly the marks of serving the special interests of the Southern Illinois coal industry with which he had so lately been connected.

Writing his own ending to his brief career as a public official, his last words in the letter to the Mayor were, "My resignation becomes effective tomorrow." Mr. Schleifer proved his own unfitness and, to use his own word, "blasted" himself out of office.

Gasoline for Candidates

The OPA recognizes that, while gasoline must be conserved, it is also important in a democracy that the voters have a chance to see and hear the candidates, so it has authorized special gasoline allotments for campaign purposes.

This, at first glance, means a door wide open to abuse of a rationing privilege. However, the public is highly sensitive nowadays on the subject of ration-chiseling, and any candidate who does an excessive amount of driving, or uses his special allotment for personal business or pleasure, can expect to lose a good many votes.

In fact, the candidate who waives the privilege and gets along on his A card, as far as that will take him, may be playing sound politics. With the armed forces calling for more and more gasoline to fuel the bombers and tanks and trucks, this ought to be a good year for candidates who get around on trains, busses or bicycles. Those who detect in themselves a resemblance to Lincoln or Webster or Clay can help along the idea by campaigning on horseback or via buckboard, to emulate the statesmen who went far without using a drop of gasoline.

A Policy for War Plants

The Army Ordnance Association's suggestion for disposal of war plants—that first consideration be given to maintaining them in stand-by condition, ready to "out-produce the world with the latest types of war equipment" if the need should arise—is thoroughly unrealistic.

If the United States Government had learned it nowhere else, it could confidently have been expected to have learned at its Muscle Shoals (Ala.) nitrate plants of the First World War that "maintenance in standby condition" is a phrase, a myth.

There are fewer things topside of earth deader, or more rapidly subject to deterioration and obsolescence, than a manufacturing plant that has ceased to produce. A policy of "maintenance in stand-by condition" would be only a pretty term for the ugly fact of throwing the plants away.

Hitler's Record of Major Blunders

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Affected by an inferiority complex, Fuehrer has conducted campaigns with unsteady and arbitrary strategy and chased after fantastic objectives, writer says; now he is a prisoner of his own war; author predicts he will make new mistakes when invasion comes.

Max Werner, Military Analyst, in Redbook Magazine

The German conduct of war bears clearly the imprint of Hitler's personal strategy. From the summer of 1940 up to the spring of 1944, he made a string of strategic mistakes because of his inability to concentrate on decisive objectives, and of the discrepancy between his means and his goals.

—Fitzpatrick.

That is why Hitler's strategy has been unsteady and arbitrary in its planning, and why it has chased after fantastic objectives.

His fatal errors began in the spring of 1940, when he was outwardly at the peak of his power. Why did he not invade England? By failing to, he prolonged the war. It is remarkable that he had no plan for its termination.

He was surprised by the continuation of this war. He expected England would make peace. He had wanted an alliance with England, or at least an agreement. As he wrote in "Mein Kampf": "If we look about us for European allies, there remain only two states, England and Italy."

Hesitation at the Channel

Finding England against him though left alone after the fall of France, Hitler wavered. I believe that something more subtle than the obstacle of the Channel handicapped him. I believe that, deep down in his conscience, he dared not attempt to deliver a decisive blow against England.

He had toward England the inferiority complex of a waiter in front of a lord. Inhibited inwardly, the bold aggressor lost his tempo in the summer of 1940, satisfying himself with the air blitz and the U-boat attacks.

Hitler's hesitant attitude took hold of his Generals, too. For the invasion of England required improvisation, and they were unable to improvise. They had not foreseen this type of operations. The professional narrow-mindedness of the German General had disastrous consequences.

Hitler's mistakes were twofold. On the one hand they were missed opportunities; on the other, plain bravado that led to catastrophes. Hitler missed the possibilities, and at the same time conducted a strategy of the impossible. It was his personal war, his hobby. He had to taste it to the full. For Hitler the war was not only a gamble, but also a game, a huge game with tin soldiers.

Unprepared for Russian Campaign

Nothing is more characteristic of Hitler than his remark to Sir Nevile Henderson, the British Ambassador in Berlin, shortly before the attack on Poland: "I prefer war when I am 50 to when I am 55 or 60." It is a psychology, not of a great General, but of a playboy for whom the war game is a personal pleasure.

The war against Russia was launched with criminal negligence. The Wehrmacht was prepared for a winter campaign neither in equipment nor in training.

In the late fall of 1942, the Wehrmacht in Southeastern Russia was placed by Hitler in a position worse than it had been in at Moscow. At Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, the Wehrmacht was stationed during the winter in open steppes and in the mountains, in deep snow and icy, deadly storms, far from its bases.

Never before in modern times was an army consciously thrown into such a trap. It was by Hitler's personal decision that the Army, enveloped at Stalingrad, was left in the Russian encirclement.

Rommel's North African offensive in 1942 was a desperate undertaking from the outset. It was another classic example of Hitler's strategy. A German conquest of North Africa would have been possible in 1941, had Hitler not attacked the Soviet Union. Now it was too late.

Getting in Deeper and Deeper

That was Hitler's strategy. With an unconquered England in the rear, he attacked Russia. In the days when the German front before Moscow was cracking, he declared war on the United States.

Hitler became the prisoner of his war. He extended it farther and farther. Unable to force military decisions, he opened new fronts and started new offensives which were nothing but a flight forward.

In 1943, the strength for such diversions was already drying up. Once more Hitler tried an offensive in Russia, the battle in the Kursk salient on July 5. It began under most unfortunate circumstances and broke down within one week.

The Russians had expected it, especially in this area. Hitler threw the mass of his heavy mobile weapons, his tanks and mechanized artillery, into the trap of the Kursk salient, where everything was destroyed. It was the last German offensive.

The Wehrmacht is even less adapted for the defense than it was for the attack. A defensive strategy requires self-control, endurance and husbanding of forces — in short, the qualities Hitler lacks.

Troops Fall Into Trap

Hitler ordered his troops to hold onto the Dnepr line and let the Wehrmacht lose strength in hopeless defensive fighting there. And worse still, the defense positions in the Southern Ukraine turned into a trap for the German troops.

Under Hitler, German withdrawal repeatedly comes too late. In Tunisia also, he sacrificed the army that was needed for the defense of Sicily and Southern Italy.

In the balance of 1944, Hitler will make new mistakes, and the more complicated and hopeless the situation of the Wehrmacht becomes, the more fatal Hitler's wrong actions will be.

The joint Allied assault will undoubtedly make the Fuehrer lose his head. Attacked from all sides, the Wehrmacht will be in the position of a chased, heavily-gasping beast, and Hitler's inevitable blunders will speed up the kill.

The Pulitzer Prize Novel

"Journey in the Dark," by Martin Flavin. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

Against the sweep and growth of 60 years of American life, ending with the present, Martin Flavin tells an impressively moving story about a "successful" man.

"Journey in the Dark," this year's Harper prize novel, is the story of Sam Braden, but it is also the story of the little town of Wyattville, Ia., where he was born in 1883, and the story of Chicago, where he amassed his wealth. The town changed, the boy changed, the great city of the West changed, the years putting their mark on all of them. America was on the march, carrying with it the strong and the ambitious, and Sam Braden was both.

Sam was 9 when he came to a realization that the world was made up of the poor and the rich. There were families like his own and there were people like the Wyatts, who gave the town its name, who owned the bank and lived in large houses surrounded by iron fences. As he saw it, wealth was the key to equality with the Wyatts.

The story of Sam Braden's success is told by a subtle flash-back method, brilliantly handled by Mr. Flavin. Through it he unfolds the development of the youth into man, first in Wyattville but mainly in Chicago. To Sam, at 20, the metropolis was a world of never-ending enchantment.

There it was that Sam amassed his fortune of millions and there he married Eileen Wyatt, with bitter and tragic consequences. The city and he had much in common, each awkward and uncouth but possessed of something sweet and homespun at the beginning of the century.

When Sam returned to Wyattville, he was worth $5,000,000. But that was the sum total of his achievement. Only Mitch Ballou, the rebellious boy turned into a rebellious newspaper correspondent, drunk half the time and, according to his self-description, a sucker for facts and the truth, had the courage to tell Wyattville's foremost citizen what was wrong with him.

"You've done everything the copybooks advise, everything the kids are taught to think," he said. "You should be immortalized, for the story of your life is, in a way, the story of America—a statement of its values. And now, from where you're sitting, what do you think about it? I'll tell you, Sam. I'll tell you how you look to me: the loneliest man I've ever known . . . a lonely man, going nowhere in the dark"——

What makes this novel so profoundly moving is Sam's instinctive recognition, as the story unfolds, of the places in his life where he had failed in essential integrity and decency, some of them seemingly little things, many of them vitally significant. It all added up to something that left him tragically lost and inadequate.

Martin Flavin may be called a successful man. His career holds impressive mileposts as a manufacturer, playwright and novelist. Only a successful man, maturely gifted with insight, knowledge and compassion, could so splendidly portray Sam Braden, could realize the poignancy of a character who looked back upon the years of his life with the bewilderment of one who did not know until he had reached his destination that he had taken the wrong train.

If the results of Sam's efforts are ironic, there is nothing ironic in Mr. Flavin's portrayal of him. Sam emerges as a figure who is real and touching and knowable, pitifully eager for recognition, seeking it the only way he knows.

No review can succeed in transmitting the art, the integrity and the dramatic rightness of this book. On all counts, it is an unusually satisfying novel.

EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER

An Impression of Palestine

JERUSALEM, (By Wireless).

ZIONISM in Palestine is so explosive a force that it must be seen to be realized. Reading isn't enough. The impact of hundreds of thousands of highly trained, highly competent European colonists, bursting with enthusiasm upon a still medieval Islamic society, is literally terrific. Outbursts and stresses seem all but inevitable. They can, in the long run, be allayed only by the triumph of one pattern of life or the other.

This doesn't mean that either the Jews or the Arabs must disappear. It does mean that either the Jews be permitted to make Palestine into an entirely modern country—a sort of outpost in the Middle East of all the finest of the Occident or that the Arabs manage to limit—"ghetto-ize"—the Jews and continue to develop slowly according to their own patterns.

Cadillacs and Camels.

There is an Arab renascence undoubtedly. The Arab is moving toward modernization. But gradually, in his dignified Oriental manner. It would seem impossible to establish traffic laws satisfactory to both Cadillac and camel-donkey societies. Here—in this writer's view—lies the Palestinian problem.

You become aware of the glaring contrast the moment your plane crosses the frontier from Sinai into Palestine, and far ahead the buildings of Beersheba begin to dance in the sunlight.

Behind — an ocean of sand dunes; ahead, growing patches of green orchards and fields literally wrung, foot by foot, from the shifting desert which has been forced back to a narrow, tawny strip along the blue Mediterranean.

Not all these model farms are Jewish, but most are Jewish, and all are Jewish in inspiration, and show where the Arab has swallowed his prejudice and learned from the Jew how, by liberal application of capital, brain-oil and elbow-grease, the desert can be made to blossom.

No Job Is Too Tough.

Here is one of the chief Jewish quarrels with the White Paper. According to the Jews, the White Paper prevents them from colonizing vast rocky hillsides, which, according to them, the Arab never could and never will cultivate, but which Zionist brains and Zionist passion can, if allowed, transform into gardens.

Jewish performance to date seems to justify this contention, for it almost seems that the rockier, the more barren, the hotter, the sandier the plot of settlement ground chosen, the more passionately do the Jewish colonists throw themselves into the task of reclaiming and fructifying it.

According to British administrators and foreign diplomats, no job is too tough to be tackled by these people. They not only raise good citrus fruits. No, they must raise the best oranges, lemons, grapefruits to grow anywhere. They not only have hospitals, a scientific institute and a university, but these must be a model for the world—and are. In the wild joy of creating a new society against all obstacles, Palestinian Jews remind the traveler irresistibly of the Communist enthusiasts who, in a series of five-year plans, did so much to transform backward Russia.

In a 10-minute walk from the Mosque of Omar on Mount Moriah in the old city of Jerusalem to the new Jewish quarter on the cool hills outside, you traverse a full thousand years.

An Imperial Task.

Here, in this writer's view, is the British headache. Despite bitter charges made by certain Jews, this writer doesn't have the impression that British colonial administration is specifically anti-Zionist or anti-Jew. It is true that the British have covered hilltops with a series of semi-fortified police stations as forbidding as medieval castles. It is true that they seem more tender of Arab susceptibilities than of Jewish ones and spend a larger percentage of their income on Arabs than upon Jews.

But the British here—it seems to this writer—are concentrated primarily upon an imperial task—namely, making this region safe for the British, and, incidentally, for civilized interests. This task can be made easier by friendly populations and internal peace.

Arabs form not only the bulk of the population in the Middle Eastern area, but, despite their occasional violent uprisings and continual protests, they are fundamentally indolent and easy to handle. The Jews aren't—decidedly. Peace-loving they certainly are. Despite insignificant extremists who occasionally murder British policemen and bomb buildings, they observe the laws.

The British Anxiety.

But their dynamic colonizing makes for tensions, problems and attitudes with which the officials of the British Colonial Office aren't particularly prepared to cope. Hence their attitude. Hence the anxiety which they make no attempt to hide. For, like everyone else in this land, they realize that once the war is over, perhaps even before, the Jewish-Arab Palestinian problem, which the White Paper sought to solve and which it has not solved, will burst forth with renewed intensity.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Notes on Dewey's New York Appearance

NEW YORK.

WHEN Charles P. Manship, Baton Rouge (La.) publisher, introduced Gov. Dewey at the publishers' dinner, he twitted his Yankee colleagues a little. He suggested it might be possible to do away with the Republican national convention, since every leap year the publishers picked as their principal speaker at their convention the next Republican nominee.

To say it was a friendly audience is to put it mildly indeed. Dewey was talking to the men who will be giving him all they've got when and—just to be on the cautious side—if he is nominated.

In the two previous campaigns, up to 90 per cent of the press has been opposed to President Roosevelt. As a fourth term candidate, the percentage might even be larger and certainly the steam behind the attack on "Roosevelt-ism" will be greater.

Dewey on a Spot.

Even with this predisposition to be friendly, however, Dewey did not have too easy a time. The chief reason was because on the bill, which was a long one, he had to follow another young Republican. Yes, the G. O. P. had two youngsters on display just to make the contrast with "tired war leaders" even most emphatic. The other one was Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

As a kind of warmer-upper for Dewey's main act, Johnston might have taken it a little easy. But not at all. He was in there pitching as hard as he could.

In fact, he tried a little too hard. You felt he was running mighty fast for something, and it probably wasn't a second term as president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. In the course of his prepared speech, he served up a good deal of political ham, but he did it with skill and charm. For emphasis, expression, warmth, his delivery was up to that of the old maestro in the White House.

Against this contrast at the end of a long evening, Dewey had to get up and read his closely written, carefully reasoned address on foreign policy. It was something of a spot.

Speaks Almost Too Well

The Governor managed it very well, on the whole. Beginning with a little repartee in response to the joshing by Manship, he appeared on terms of friendly familiarity with his listeners.

Reading a serious speech to such an audience isn't easy. Dewey made it as painless as possible. He speaks well, at times—and this is one of F. D. R.'s platform weaknesses—almost too well; like an actor letter perfect in his part.

You can understand what people mean, and this would include some of those who want most to win with him, when they say it's hard to warm up to him. His manner tends to be mechanical. He has none of the natural charm that Johnston exudes.

For the G. O. P., it was a very smart thing to display their two bright young men. That's likely to be the focus of the entire campaign—the appeal of fresh, vigorous youth as against the tired old faces.

If this has a superficial sound, judging the political leaders of the nation as though they were part of the cast of a road show, people's judgments are formed by just those things. We haven't yet reached the stage where issues are decided by pure reason.

The Democrats are concerned about the handicap of the familiar old faces. The professionals now planning the campaign know it's a big hurdle they've got to get over.

The Keynote Problem.

That is one reason why so much thought is being given just now to the choice of a keynoter for the Democratic convention. Chairman Robert Hannegan is thinking in terms of someone new and a little surprising. He differs from those who take it for granted that once again the keynoter will be "Dear Alben" Barkley

One candidate under consideration as keynoter is Gov. Kerr of Oklahoma. Kerr is a big, imposing-looking man who, like most politicians in Oklahoma of whatever breed, has made money in oil. Choice of a Governor would also help to counter the Republican claim — they've elected 26 state executives — of grassroots leadership as opposed to Washington domination.

Incidentally, it seems to me the G. O. P. slipped a cog in not naming Clare Booth Luce as its keynoter It would have had youth and beauty besides a good snappy speech.

The veteran office-holder in Washington are going to have to stir themselves. The challenge of change is persuasive.

DR. COGHILL EXPLAINS PENICILLIN SCARCITY

20 Million Dollars Invested in 21 Plants Yielded Only 60 Pounds in March.

The United States and Canada have a 20-million-dollar investment in penicillin production and yet the total March output of their 21 plants was only about 60 pounds of the fragile but powerful bacteria-inhibiting drug, the St. Louis Chapter of the American Chemical Society was told last night by Dr. Robert D. Coghill, chief of the fermentation division of the Department of Agriculture's Northern Regional Research Laboratory at Peoria.

But low as the present production rate is, in terms of the wartime need for the substance, the March total represented a tremendous increase over the amount produced in the corresponding month a year ago, he pointed out. My May, 1943, five months after production got under way, only six-tenths of a pound had been recovered and made available for clinical use. During those five trying months the monthly average was less than one-tenth of a pound.

"The cost price of penicillin to the Army and Navy now," the widely-known biochemist pointed out, "is about $75,000 a pound. If penicillin were available to the general public its over-the-counter price would be close to $200,000 a pound."

Thus Dr. Coghill replied to the hopeful who have wondered why the remarkable drug cannot be obtained for general clinical use.

The production rate, he said, may be expected to increase substantially in the months to come. The infinitely patient, trial-and-error experiments of Government and chemical industry research workers have perfected a relatively satisfactory procedure for producing penicillin by the natural cultivation of favorable molds. Large scale production, however, still awaits discovery of a means of producing penicillin synthetically. To a question regarding the possibility of artificial production, Dr. Coghill replied: "We're not thinking about scrapping our present plants for a long time."

Penicillin was discovered in 1929 by Dr. Alexander Fleming, an English scientist, but its clinical possibilities were not suspected until Dr. H. W. Florey of Oxford University made his startling experiments in 1936.

CHINA FAR FROM COLLAPSE, SAYS Y.M.C.A MAN ON LEAVE

Despite current reverses, China is far from collapse and is hardly likely to succumb to an all-out Japanese drive, Roger D. Arnold, veteran Y. M. C. A. representative in Southwestern China, declared here today. A native Missourian, Arnold is home on leave, and is making a series of talks to Y. M. C. A. groups.

"The invaders have launched big drives before, but they were all followed by so-called strategic withdrawals," he said. "The Japanese are using larger forces than ever in the current offensives, but I shall be greatly surprised if they get very far toward Chungking or toward opening the trunk rail line from Peiping to Hongkong."

The task of smashing Japan will be long and hard, however, he predicted, declaring, "The Chinese themselves generally believe there will be no early end to the struggle."

PEACE OF RETRIBUTION OPPOSED IN REPORT

Methodist Body Favors Severe Relations With Japan, Forgiveness for Germany.

KANSAS CITY, May 2 (AP).—A subcommittee of the Methodist general conference recommended yesterday that controls and safeguards be placed upon postwar Germany, but not to the point of oppression, and that strictures on Japan be "severe" but not "retributive."

The report will be considered later by the main body of delegates representing eight million Methodists.

Germany must take its place in a world organization of nations, "assuming all the responsibilities and rights which such membership implies," the report said.

"For Germany, the aggressor, Christianity involves reconciliation on the basis of justice and the meeting of a spirit of repentance with a spirit of forgiveness."

Although relations with Japan "will be severe, as Christians we urge that they be just, constructive and not retributive," the report said.

Restoration of Formosa, Korea and Manchuria "inevitably" will upset Japan's economy, and Japan must be provided markets for exports, opportunities to borrow capital and obtain food, the group recommended.

In America, the report urged elimination of racial discrimination within the Methodist church, and restoration of full rights as citizens to loyal Japanese-Americans, "especially the right to return to their former residences and occupations."

The subcommittee, headed by the Rev. Mark Depp of Pittsburgh, and the Rev. Dr. Ernest F. Tittle of Evanston, Ill., suggested that nations delegate to "international government . . . final judgment in controversies between nations . . . maintenance and use of armed forces except for preservation of domestic order, and the regulation of international trade and population movements among nations."

The group called upon "Americans to accept whatever limitations on tariff, trade relations and access to raw materials as will help provide an equality of opportunity for all men to raise their standards of living, even though it may temporarily lower our own."

Helis' Rounders Wins Handicap

BALTIMORE, May 2 (AP). — Rounders carried the blue and white silks of William Helis, New Orleans oil man, to victory in the thirty-first running of the $15,000 added Philadelphia Handicap at Pimlico today after a thrilling five-horse battledown the straightaway.

Rounders came to the wire a length in front of Calumet Farm's Mar-Kell, the lone mare of the small field. Mar-Kell in turn led Greentree Stable's Four Freedoms, the favorite of a crowd of approximately 12,000persons.

4 Titles to St. Louis' Roller Ace

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, May 2. — Anthony Mirrelli, 22-year-old St. Louis (Mo.) bakery employe, won the senior men's title in the United States roller speed skating championships here last night.

Runner up in the nationals last year, Mirrelli captured the 440, 880, two-mile and five-mile events, and despite a bad spill got up to finish second in the mile to Harry Lindbergh of Detroit. The St. Louisan also fell in the two-mile, but won the event anyway.

Mirrelli, standing only five feet four inches and weighing 146 pounds, outpointed Lindbergh, 140 to 100, with three other contestants, Norman Archer of Detroit, Irwin Gianneschi of Chicago and William Keplinger of Dayton, tied at 20 points each.

The St. Louis skater clinched his championship in the final event, the five-mile. Lindbergh led for the first four miles but took a spill and Morelli went on to win.

Mirrelli has been an outstanding local speed skater. There was no championship held here this season in the speed skating events.

Pirates' Handley Injured; Roe Hurls

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURGH, May 2.—Rookie Al Jurisich pitched for the league-leading Cardinals here this afternoon as they opened a three-game series with Frankie Frisch's Pirates. Preacher Roe was the Pittsburgh hurler.

A good throw by Vince DiMaggio retired Stan Musial at the plate on Sanders' single in the third inning. The Cardinals made a violent protest of Umpire Ballanfant's decision—to no avail.

Giesler New Chairman of Soccer Board

Walter Giesler, one of the men responsible for the renewed activity in soccer among school-age boys, is the new chairman of the Missouri Soccer Commission. At a meeting held at Neighborhood Association last night, the nine commission members selected Giesler as their leader for the coming year, elevating him to the post recently left open through the resignation of Les Hatchard.

John Marre was renamed vice-president, Ed Heggi was elected treasurer and Bob Russell secretary. Other members of the commission are Charles McBride, John Scully, Jimmy Dunn, Tom Molloy and Harry Meyers.

Arrangements were completed at the meeting for Sunday night's soccer program at Public Schools Stadium in which El Reys, champions of St. Louis, oppose the Falk club of Milwaukee in a Midwest championship match. Preliminary to that game will be a contest between teams of the Royal Air Force quartered at Lambert Field and the French Air Force of Scott Field. Les Hathcard and Jim Begley were named referees for the British-French game and Howard Blaisdell and Prudence Garcia for the El Reys-Falk game.

The commission went on record as favoring a change in the Municipal Association rules next season to permit the use of substitutes for players ejected from the game. This change is favored to assure the presence of a full team of 11 men on the field at all times. The proposed rule change will be submitted to the Muny soccer organization meeting of managers next fall.

Leahy to Report at Princeton on May 25

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP).—Midwest football coaches and fans speculated today on the next grid coaching job for Frank Leahy, for the past three years director of athletics at Notre Dame, and the concensus was that he may wind up at the Iowa Naval Preflight School this fall.

But there are at least four other naval bases without 1944 coaches and Leahy may go to any one of them—if he goes as a coach at all.

Leahy's order when he was sworn in as a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve yesterday was to report to Princeton University May 25 for a 60-day indoctrination course.

CUBS ARE SEEKING A NEW MANAGER, WILSON IS LOOKING FOR A JOB

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP).—Jimmy Wilson was looking for a new baseball job today and the Chicago Cubs were hunting for a new manager to take his place as boss of the National League cellar club.

"I'm interested in staying in baseball and I'm open for offers," said Wilson, a National League player-coach-manager for 20 years, as he announced his resignation yesterday.

Bristling with draft-free talent —including the pick of Milwaukee of the American Association and Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League, both pennant winners last year—the Cubs returned home yesterday mired in a nine-game losing streak. They have only one win for the National League campaign, their opener against Cincinnati.

Wilson Has No Squawks.

Wilson's resignation was announced after a conference with Phil K. Wrigley, Cubs' owner, and James Gallagher, vice-president and general manager. They called him in to learn why the club was on the skids. The 43-year-old Wilson, who succeeded Gabby Hartnett, taking over in 1941, offered his resignation.

"I have no squawks," he said. "When you don't win you have to vamoose. I hope my resignation will improve the club."

Wrigley announced that Roy Johnson, veteran coach in the Cub organization, would become acting field manager. Wilson promptly wished Johnson luck—"enough of it to stick as manager."

20 Managers for Cubs in 68 Years

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP).

JIMMY WILSON, who yesterday resigned as Chicago Cubs manager, is the twentieth boss of the club since the organization of the National League in 1876.

Eight of the Cub managers held their jobs one year or less. Of the 20 managers Cap Anson held the boss job the longest—from 1879 to 1897. Since the turn of the century pilots holding longest reign were Frank Chance, 1906-1912, and Charlie Grimm, from 1932 to midsummer of 1938.

But speculation was rife as to his permanent successor as boss of the club which many observers picked as a pennant contender this season.

Names popped up from a list afred a year ago when Wilson's popularity with Chicago fans reached such a plight that he was booed while on the coaching lines. Jimmy sauntered to the dugout after that incident and never returned to the coaching box.

The list included Casey Stengel, who resigned this winter as manager of the Boston Braves; Bill Terry, ex-boss of the New York Giants; Bill Jurges, now of the Giants and a great popular shortstop with the Cubs for several years; "Muddy" Ruel, Chicago White Sox coach, and Bill Sweeney, pilot of the Cubs' 1943 Pacific Coast championship Los Angeles team.

Never in First Division.

Wilson, a catcher, played in four world series, three with the St. Louis Cardinals and one with Cincinnati. He began his major league career with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1923, went to the Cardinals five years later and then in 1934 returned as Phillies manager. After five years he moved again, this time as first assistant and head coach of the Reds. But after the 1940 Reds-Detroit Tigers world series, in which Jimmy played a starring role, he was signed as Cubs' manager. The Cubs, under his direction, finished sixth in 1941 and 1942 and fifth in '43.

Country Day Wins, 2-0.

Country Day School, playing on its own field, defeated Ferguson, 2 to 0, yesterday. It was Country Day's second victory against seven defeats. Sand and Robertson of the winners had a double and single each. Levis and Gatch formed the battery for Country Day, Meyer and Haber worked for Ferguson. The victros made siv hits, the losers four, in the seven-inning game.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The A. A. U. Is on the Spot Again.

DAN FERRIS is one of the nicest men and undoubtedly one of the most capable Amateur Athletic Union officials since the late James E. Sullivan ruled the amateur roost. . . . But the wrath of collegiate officials is almost certain to bomb his devoted head, as a result of the Bob Steuber episode.

Ferris, acting according to AAU rules and, he says, under an agreement with military officials, forbade Steuber (of Missouri, De Pauw, and Marquette Universities and now representing, athletically, the Iowa Seahawks) to compete in the Drake Relay games at Des Moines last week.

He had professionalized himself, relates Ferris, by competing in one professional football game. . . . The Drake relay officials and all connected with the games agreed to disregard Ferris' ruling. . . . Steuber competed but did not place in either the shot-put or the javelin.

And so there you have it. . . . The AAU regulations call for the suspension of all amateur athletes who compete against a professional. . . . But since his "professional" offense, Bob has represented both De Pauw and Marquette in many events. . . . Can this mean that Ferris will undertake to suspend all college athletes against whom Steuber has competed?

If it does, it is obvious that another rift in the amateur athletic lute, as between the AAU and the collegiate groups, is in the making. . . . And the AAU has many times in the past encountered just such difficulties and the attending bitter criticism.

IT CAN be said for the AAU that its official is acting according to the regulations, but hardly with appreciation of conditions. . . . In war time, couldn't the amateur Athletic Union find a way to look out of the window and disregard the letter of the law, in view of the circumstances?

Certainly, if the incident is to provoke another row with collegiate groups, the AAU will have gained nothing for itself but a recurrence of the bitter complaints that too frequently have been directed at the country's great amateur body.

Hard to Believe But There It Is.

LOOKING at the standing of the clubs on May 2 you'll probably rub your eyes and look again. . . It's hard to believe, boys, but there we are at the top—both St. Louis major league clubs. . . . Furthermore the Browns, so lightly esteemed before the season only one writer (is our face red) picked them to win the American League pennant, have won twice as many games as the team's nearest rival.

In May we can indulge in fond dreams of an October all St. Louis world series. . . . The idea will provoke many sardonic grins, but in these queer times it's not necessarily a moronic idea.

The Cards will be granted a first-rate flag chance, no doubt. . . . The team has appeared a powerhouse, beside its competition, thus far.

As for the Browns, all they need to remain in the hunt seriously is to jack up that batting punch, which thus far has lingered around the .230 team average, as compared with the Cards' .270 figure—the best in either league.

The Brownies can rate a second look as a pennant hope on the ground of that fine infield, all vets and with a good reserve in Clary. . . . Also the club's pitching has been better thus far than was expected and, with Kramer at last a pitching ace, the mound isn't so badly defended by comparison with other A. L. teams.

The catching is better than last year and the outfield not much worse except for the loss of Chet Laabs' hitting. . . . Add to all this, 18 players in 4-F classification and you get the idea that the Browns really have a look-in.

DAN FERRIS

What's Become of The Lively Ball?

BATTING averages in both leagues today make you wonder what happened to the "lively" ball which was supposed to give the batter an advantage over the pitcher. . . . But you can't find much evidence of any jack-rabbit in the batting averages.

Only two major league clubs have team batting averages above .247. . . . They are the Cards with .270 and the Giants with .266. . . . Washington leads the American League with .247. . . . The third high club in the National is Philadelphia with .245.

It looks more like a pitchers' year than a clean-up season for the batters.

Yet Ford Frick, president of the National League, gives us a different picture. . . . He says the new ball "has a core made of reprocessed rubber that makes it more lively than the balata-center ball used last year." . . . He adds that manufacturers tell him this year's baseball is eight or 10 feet longer on a long drive—a distance that might make the difference between a home run and an out in some parks.

Probably it will be some weeks before the true resilience of the 1944 baseball definitely will be measurable.

Boudreau Gets Army Physical Test Tomorrow

CLEVELAND, O., May 2 (AP).—Lou Boudreau, 26-year-old manager and shortstop of the Cleveland Indians, reported today he had been called for his preinduction physical examination tomorrow by his Harvey, Ill., draft board.

Boudreau, beginning his third season as pilot of the Indians, has been in 1-A for several weeks. He is married and the father of two children.

The young manager joined the Indians in 1939, moving up from Buffalo of the International League, and was made manager at the start of the 1942 season. He entered professional baseball after graduating from the University of Illinois in 1938.

Coach Burt Shotton will direct the Indians in games with the Chicago White Sox today and tomorrow.

Seals Total 3056 But Lose Odd Game

Although the Silver Seals totaled 3056, the high count of the night, the team lost two out of three to the Grand Parks in last night's round of the Classic League at the Arway Recreation. The winners shot 3030, with Stauder hitting 632, Buckles 630 and Gillett 615. Jung had 687 and Bobmeyer 667, with a single of 264, for the Seals.

The leading France Laux five lost two of three to the Reinekes, the Natural Set Ups won three from the Hermanns and the Stumhofers took the odd from the National Refrigerators.

High men were Rothweiler 609, Kurowski 645, Tonkovic 610, Tomasek 632, Matuya 612.

The league season ends next week, after which the winner probably will bowl the Falstaffs, Major League champions, in a special nine-game match at Heidel's.

Indian Rookie Rejected.

CLEVELAND, May 2 (AP). — Paul O'Dea, rookie Cleveland outfielder, was rejected in his preinduction physical examination because of an eye injury received when he first played with the Indians in 1940. He played with Wilkes-Barre and Portsmouth in 1941 and Cedar Rapids in 1942. Last season he played semi-pro baseball in Cleveland.

BILL ON ENDING WAR CONTRACTS SENT TO SENATE

Measure Intended to Guarantee Firms Will Be Paid Fair Compensation Speedily.

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—The Senate received from its Military Committee today a bill to guarantee that "business men shall be paid speedily the fair compensation which is due them" when their war contracts are terminated.

The measure has the support of the War and Navy departments and business organizations. Labor groups have asked that, instead of being handled separately, it be incorporated into broader legislation covering protection of workers in the reconversion of industry to peacetime production.

These are the major points of the bill as outlined in the formal report of Senator Murray (Dem.), Montana, chairman of a military subcommittee studying demobilization legislation:

The director of an Office of Contract Settlement shall prescribe standards for the various Government contracting agencies to settle terminated contracts.

Advance or partial payments by the agencies, pending final settlement, are allowed to the extent that loans do not take care of the needs of contractors whose war jobs are ended.

Contracting agencies are to give termination notices as far in advance as feasible and consistent with national security.

If the Government fails to remove from the contractor's plant, within 30 days, all goods which are not to be retained, "the war contractor may remove and store such termination inventory at the Government's expense and risk."

The Comptroller General's functions with respect to individual settlements are to be confined to determining whether settlement payments were in accordance with the settlement and whether there was evidence of fraud.

Pvt. Joseph E. Watson, 25-year-old Camp Ellis (Ill.) soldier shot Saturday night on flood duty, died last night at the Scott Field post hospital.

Watson, formerly of New York, was found suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen in a Valmeyer (Ill.) theater where his unit was quartered while on duty in that area. Details of the shooting were not made public pending an Army investigation now under way. The body was taken to Belleville.

wrote the books and lyrics for the shows, "Wildflower," "Rose Marie," "Sunny," "Song of the Flame," "The Desert Song," "Show Boat" and "New Moon." He composed the lyrics for "Old Man River," "All the Things You Are," "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "Lover Come Back to Me," "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," "Indian Love Call," "Only Make Believe," "Why Do I Love You," "Who," "Why Was I Born," and "Can't Help Loving That Man of Mine."

Stephen Vincent Benet

Benet previously won a Pulitzer poetry prize in 1929 with his "John Brown's Body." He died in New York March 14, 1943, at the age of 44.

A brother, William Rose Benet, likewise had won the Pulitzer award for poetry. They were the sons of an Army colonel and the grandsons of an Army brigadier-general.

Born in Bethlehem, Pa., Benet was married to the former Rosemary Carr, also a writer. They had two daughters and a son. When the war broke out Benet, who had established his literary reputation in published works that began when he was 17 and a Yale freshman, turned to radio script writing. Radio plays he wrote included "A Tooth for Paul Revere" in which Raymond Massey starred, and "A Child Is Born," presented by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne.

Among his best known literary works was the prose story "The Devil and Daniel Webster," later turned into an opera and later into a movie entitled "All That Money Can Buy." He also wrote an operetta based on Washington Irving's "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

Merle Curti

Curti was born in 1897 in Papillion, Neb., and history has been his steady companion all his adult life. He is professor of history at the University of Wisconsin. In reviewing "The Growth of American Thought," Stanley Walker, writing in the New York Herald Tribune, said: "'The Growth of American Thought' must be respected, if for nothing else, because of its heft and the obvious amount of labor that went into its making. But does it get us very far? Ah, there's the question, moot and grave."

Carleton Mabee

"The American Leonardo: The Life of Samuel F. B. Morse," was Mabee's first book. Mabee was born in the French concession in Shanghai, China, lived in Japan, Canada and the United States before he was 3 years old, and by the time he was 9 had been around the world. Mabee, 30, is a resident of the civilian public service state colony, at Lisbon, N. J. He attended Bates College in Maine, and received his master's degree from Columbia University. He is a Phi Beta Kappa.

Howard Hanson

Hanson, who is as well known to concert goers as are Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II to musical comedy patrons, is the second musician to win the prize in music. This prize was inaugurated last year, when William Schumann won it.

Hanson's most important previous work was an opera, "Merry Mount," produced by the Metropolitan Opera in 1934. (Richard L. Stokes of the Post-Dispatch Washington bureau wrote the libretto.) Among his other compositions are "Nordic Symphony," "Pan and the Priest," "Romantic Symphony," and "Lament of Beowulf."

Born 48 years ago at Wahoo, Neb., he first taught at the College of the Pacific, San Jose, Cal., where he became dean of the Conservatory of Fine Arts. In 1921 he accepted a fellowship to the American Academy in Rome. Returning to the United States three years later, he was appointed director of the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester. He has been guest conductor with various orchestras and had led the American orchestral concerts at Rochester.

TVA CHAIRMAN HERE; VIEWS VALLEY FLOODS

David E. Lilienthal, who as chairman of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority has helped develop plans for flood control in the Tennessee Valley, said in St. Louis today that he was amazed by the extent of the flood waters now sweeping the Mississippi Valley. Flying from Chicago to St. Louis yesterday, he had a good view of the inundation along the Illinois River and along the Mississippi adjacent to St. Louis.

He will speak at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon on Post-Dispatch radio station KSD on "Making a River Do as It's Told."

Although Lilienthal himself has not specifically advocated application of the TVA flood control plan to the Mississippi and its upper tributaries, some engineers and others concerned with the situation have said that some form of flood control based on TVA principles will be necessary if the great flood damage in the Mississippi and Missouri River Valleys is to be checked.

In a recent book on TVA, Lilienthal described the Tennessee Valley as the only one of a thousand river valleys in the world which has been developed according to a plan that co-ordinates and controls its resources for the benefit of the inhabitants.

McKellar's Proposals.

Proposals pending in Congress which threaten to cripple TVA's method of operation are causing considerable concern in the Tennessee Valley, Lilienthal said. The proposals are the two amendments sponsored by Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee to the independent offices appropriation bill.

One would limit the financial operations of TVA by requiring that its net earnings from the sale of electric power be turned into the Treasury and not be available for the agency's use unless specifically appropriated by Congress. The other, aimed particularly at TVA, would require Senate confirmation of all Federal employes receiving salaries of $4500 or more annually.

Opposed by Lilienthal.

Enactment of these measures, Lilienthal said, would destroy the basic principles on which TVA operates and make it subject to the manipulations of politicians. Under the act creating it, TVA is able to use its earnings in its operations at the discretion of its directors and must keep political influences completely out of selection and promotion of its employes.

Senator McKellar has for several years carried on a campaign to limit the powers of the TVA management, and TVA supporters have charged that his motive is to place it in the hands of the politicians.

The controversial proposals are now before a conference committee of Congress, which is expected to take action on them in the next week or two. Lilienthal said that chambers of commerce and other business organizations in the Tennessee Valley have joined in petitions to Congress to preserve the independence of TVA.

7 WOMEN FOUND GUILTY

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP).—Seven women associated with the Hopkins Institute, alleged call house, were convicted today of conspiracy to violate the Mann Act after a trial that failed to bring fully into the open a "little black book" reputed to contain names of the institute's customers.

The United States District Court jury deliberated one hour and 20 minutes. No date for sentencing was set. The women are subject to sentences ranging from four months to two years.

PACTS MADE ON RULE OF LIBERATED NATIONS

U. S. - British Agreements With Dutch, Belgians, Norwegians Disclosed.

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—The British Government announced today its approval of a Russian-Czech agreement for the administration of liberated Czechoslovakian territory and disclosed that Britain and the United States have drafted pacts similar in principle with the exile governments of Norway, Belgium and Holland. These now are awaiting Russia's approval.

The Russian-Czech agreement, previously approved by the United States, provides for the civil administration of liberated territory to be turned over to Czech authorities as rapidly as military requirements permit.

The British delay in approval was attributed in responsible quarters to the time required for consultation the United States Government, made necessary by the possibility that Britons might participate in the liberation of some Czech soil.

GEORGE C. SMITH ADVISES CITY BOUNDARY EXPANSION

Expansion of the boundaries of St. Louis would increase the city's population to more than a million and encourage commercial interests, George C. Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce, told the 85 delegates to the Constitutional Convention in Jefferson City in letters urging them to support proposal 350, which would have the effect of defining in the Constitution the new boundaries of the city.

Estimating the total population of St. Louis and the areas west of the city limits and east of Lindbergh boulevard to be between 1,092,000 and 1,100,000, Smith said the proposed expansion would make St. Louis the sixth instead of the eighth largest city in the United States, and would enable the city to compete with other municipalities in industrial and commercial growth.

"THANKS for giving the boys a break"
You do someone a real favor when you stay off Long Distance lines from 7 to 10 at night. When a lot of people do that, a lot of service men's calls get through quicker.
The soldiers and sailors—their folks back home—and the telephone company are all grateful for your help.
So tonight and every night, "Please give 7 to 10 to the service men." That's about the best time they have to call.

STOCKS ARE MIXED ON LIGHT PROFIT-TAKING

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP).—The stock market today tried to keep Monday's selection rally going but, while scattered issues made the grade, many leaders were stalled by light profit selling.

Prices were at their best and activity most pronounced in the forenoon. Volume then slackened and trends began to waver. The result was considerable irregularity near the close.

Individual Movements.

Investors seemed a bit more confident, in the light of pleasing dividends and assorted favorable earnings forecasts. There also was less apprehension over possible invasion repercussions on the list. There was some hesitancy, however, by those still inclined to maintain a cash position pending the European push. Others held aloof to await returns from the Florida and Alabama primaries.

Schenley backed water when it was disclosed this company had been named, along with numerous others, in a Federal indictment charging ceiling violations. Ahead most of the time were Park & Tilford, Standard Oil (New Jersey), Marine Midland, Sears Roebuck and Johns-Manville. Downward drifters at one time or another were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Texas Co., Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse and Dow Chemical. Rails were forced to contend with word the roads had agreed to another six-months' suspension of 1942 rate boosts.

Transfers for the full proceedings were 571,210 shares compared with 570,570 shares yesterday.

Of the 821 issues traded in today, 296 were higher, 297 lower and 228 unchanged. Twenty-six made new 1944 highs and seven new 1044 lows.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed at 51.3, down .1 of a point.

Trend on the Curb.

Supported in the curb were Pennroad, Puget Sound Power, Carrier Corporation and Niagara Hudson Power. Laggards were Cyanamid "B", Republic Aviation and Glen Alden Coal.

Bullish psychology was buoyed to some extent on the big board by the fact that, despite expectations the all-out swing at the Axis would get under way any day, the industrial share average on the London stock exchange lately reached a new top since last September.

In the domestic mart it was noted that petroleum company shares have given a good account of themselves over the past week or so. These had the benefit of optimistic earnings reports from the majority of producers and the still lingering hope governmental quarters ultimately will approve an increase in crude rates to stimulate output.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Western Auto Supply Co. (Missouri) reports net loss of $310,353 for the March quarter, compared with net profit of $209,160, equal to 28 cents a share, in the comparable 1943 quarter. Net sales of the two periods amounted to $8,557,757 and $9,381,368, respectively. The report said loss in operations resulted from a narrower margin of gross profit and a decreased volume in the steel division.

LIMITED TRADE MARKS DAY IN GRAIN PITS

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP).—Trade in all grains was limited today with uncertain war and weather developments failing to furnish any positive stimulus. Wheat reflected a lack of general interest. Rye failed to develop a trend and lost most of its bulge of a cent.

Moderate offerings of July wheat were reported by a broker with cash connections and there was some selling of the December contract by a local trader. The oats and barley markets were firm but lifeless.

BONDS TURN IRREGULAR IN NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP). — Bond market developed a tinge of irregularity in late trading today, after holding steady in a narrow range most of the morning. Changes both ways were small.

Missouri Pacific loans held a slight advantage at one time, but gave way in later transactions, along with St. Paul 5s, North Western 4¾s, Rock Island 4½s, New Haven 4s and Southern Pacific 4½s.

Resistant were numerous investment-type industrial and utility bonds and selected rails, including Katy 4s and Seaboard 6s.

Brooklyn Union Gas 5s and 6s sold within small fractions of the best price of the year and Burlington 5s of 1971 topped the previous peak by a small margin. Other higher priced corporates doing better included American Telephone 3s and Central Pacific first 4s. U. S. Governments were quiet.

British Empire bonds and Latin Americans took the play in the foreign department. Canada 4s of 1960 duplicated the previous high at 110¼. Australia 5s and Chile 6s were among others making progress.

The final hour produced little change in the irregular performance of the market. Libby, McNeil & Libby 4s dropped 1½ points to 105 on offer of four bonds. Lehigh Valley Coal 5s gave up a point at 75, but Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron 5s gained 1¼ at 62⅞ and Pere Marquette 5s added ½ at 101.

In the Associated Press bond averages the 20 railroad bonds closed at 87.3, up .1; 10 industrials, 105, a new 1944 low, down .3; 10 utilities, 106, down .1; 10 foreign, 65.7, down .2, and 10 low-yield bonds, 114.9, down .1.

Sales amounted to $6,963,400, compared with $7,418,200 yesterday.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 15C A BALE OFF TO 40C UP

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP).—Continued liquidation of May cotton and switching into later months featured routine trading in the market today. A small volume of mill price fixing against textiles contracts held prices steady as traders awaited actions for higher textile ceilings. Mills showed little interest in spot cotton.

Late afternoon values were 15@45c a bale higher, May 21.10, July 20.57 and Oct. 19.85.

Futures closed 15 cents a bale lower to 40 cents higher.

Slapsie Maxie

He Found It Pays to Look and Act Dumb

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD.

HIS birth record dresses him up as Maxwell Everett Rosenbloom, but to Hollywood and the rest of the world he is Slapsy Maxie—a character man if there ever was one. Maxie has carved out three careers for himself — prize fighting, night clubbing and motion picture acting. In each of the three, he's coined himself a small fortune — all because he capitalized on the idea of looking and acting dumb.

ROSENBLOOM

Rosenbloom is a flat-nosed, cauliflowered gent who looks the part he plays. He retired from the prize ring with a neat nest egg. He operates thriving restaurants in Los Angeles and San Francisco. His homely mugg and lisping voice go on the screen at the rate of $1200 a week.

ON THE SET of "Irish Eyes Are Smiling," in which he plays another of his comedy bunglers, Slapsy Maxie grew serious for a moment. He told his success story simply. "It pays to let the other fellow feel smarter than you," he said.

Maxie began his boxing career at the age of 15 with George Raft as his first manager. As early as that he learned the wisdom of disguising cupidity with stupidity. Knocked out only once in a total of 360 bouts, Maxie achieved fame in the ring by developing a strange technique. He slapped his opponents around until they were bewildered, then slipped over the kayo punch.

HIS CAFE VENTURES began in 1936 with a 40-seat joint that was hardly more than a hole in the wall. It became famous through Maxie's informal entertainment. A year ago Maxie took over a sumptuous big club that had failed. Now he can cater to 650 patrons nightly—and does. His San Francisco spot is smaller, but plays to a profit, especially when the host himself goes up to appear in person.

As we stood talking on the set, Monte Woolley came along, extracted a cigarette from his case and passed them around.

"I ain't never tasted liquor nor touched weeds," said Maxie, shaking his head vigorously.

"WHAT DO YOU DO at your night club when patrons want you to join them in some libation?" Woolley wanted to know.

"I tell 'em I never touch the stuff, and dat if dey're wise, dey'll lay off before it kills 'em," Maxie said simply.

"And what happens then, my virtuous apostle of muscles?" persisted Woolley.

"Why, mostly dey laugh an' t'ink I'm a card an' order demselves twice as many drinks," Maxie solemnly explained, "but one time a guest who was lit up before he hit my joint, got mad. He says to me: 'Why you punch-drunk pug, you're just stupid.' An' I says right back: 'Oh, you want I should be smart, an' starve to death.'"

MAXIE IS NEITHER as illiterate nor as uncultured as he takes such pains to convey. He reads almost everything he can get his hands on. A temporary speech aberration made a movie actor out of him, and he tells the story with considerable gusto. One night Maxie lost a front tooth during a fight. He couldn't pronounce his r's. When he was introduced to Charles Vidor, the movie director realized the laugh possibilities of a hulking pug who called himself "Wosenbloom."

FROM THAT TIME on Rosenbloom has been a movie comedian. Maxie says the first time he sat in on the showing of one of his pictures he cried like a baby. He didn't realize his lisp sounded so funny. But the reviewers hailed him as a new comedy find—so Maxie buried his pride, continued his lisp and went on being crazy-like-a-fox.

He's 37 years old, can't get in the Army because of perforated ear drums, but has done a stint entertaining troops in the South Pacific. And after finishing his current chore at Twentieth Century-Fox, he plans to go right out again.

"THAT'S FINE. JUST WRAP IT UP."

BROADWAY

By WALTER WINCHELL

THE First Nights: The New York Drama Critics' Circle (following a feud among members over the method of balloting for The Best Play of the Year) couldn't reach a decision at their first meeting. They could dig up only seven votes for Lillian Hellman's "The Searching Wind"—A tie score, since other candidates got a total of as many . . . This member would have voted for it, but couldn't attend the balloting . . . And so he votes for it now. It is the oak, we are assured, among the other dramatic shrubs . . . "Helen Goes to Troy" provided a glittering tail light to the departing season. The operetta is a Niagara of gaiety according to the oracles. Howard Barnes of the Herald Tribune called it a good-looking, tuneful show—"great fun" . . . "Allah Be Praised," which wasn't appreciated at the opening performance, is reported delighting cash customers. It is, some of them insist, superior to other musicals which attracted warm reviews. But as George Bernard Shaw has said—so long as more people will pay admission to a theater to see a naked body than a naked brain, the drama will languish.

THE MOOM PITCHERS: "Follow the Boys" is a star-studded film, with a star-spangled theme: A tribute to soldiers in grease paint for their war work. It's loaded with more talent than you can shake a contract at: Zorina, G. Raft, M. Dietrich, Sophie Tucker, Jeanette MacDonald and W. C. Fields, to mention a few . . . The garter-snapping farce, "Up in Mabel's Room" (just a twinkle in grandpappy's memory) loses much of its snap in the fuddy-duddy celluloid version. However, Mischa Auer and Charlotte Greenwood give the funnybone some exercise . . . "Arizona Trail" is cowboy-meets-girl stuff and a convention of cliches . . . "Casanova in Burlesque" wastes the talents of a few big-timers with an orgy of stale quips.

THE RADIORACLES: The behind-the-scenes news of the brawl between Petrillo and the big recording firms isn't the money difference in the fees demanded. It is really the showdown fight between the major networks and the musicians' union. RCA owns NBC and Victor platters—CBS owns Columbia discs. Catch on? . . . Ginny Simms' clever plan to assure disabled and other war veterans of entertainment over here for the next decade. Recruit the mayors and editors of every city and town where there is a vets' hospital (and there will be one in every city) to arrange for the talent appearing at the local night clubs and theaters to do one extra performance—for the vets!

Tokio's prattlesnakes bragged that the Pacific is big enough to hide its navy. Remember when they reported our navy sunk?

SHOP TALK: Charles Colebaugh, Mr. Big at Collier's, is ill and confined to the hospital . . . When Edythe Farrell, prettiest of the magazine editors, took over command of the Police Gazette six years ago it had 38,000 circ . . . It now claims 276,000 . . . Gil Bundy is back from Tarawa with 30 sketches of men in action . . . Rumor insists an unexpected shift in drama critics at one gazette . . . Another states Ward Morehouse may shelve reviewing to concentrate on his theater news and books . . . Willkie (and his wife) received an ovation when the audience recognized him at "Decision" the other night . . . The N. Y. Times (AP) report of a famed man's illness: ". . . who is recovering from an attack of influenza complicated by neuritis and his wife moved to his farm."

QUOTATION MARKSMANSHIP: Bernice Parks: Hitler wants a negotiated peace. Meaning he'll be satisfied with a smaller victory . . . Lee Pape: One of those spring nights when even the smallest stars are allowed out . . . F. O. Reppli er: She sat up like an exclamation point . . . Shep Fields: She fondled him lovingly as though he was her scrapbook . . . Mark Twain: Close a school and you will have to open a jail . . . Damon Runyon: It may be that the race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, but that's the way to bet . . . Louise Reid: No woman can do anything with a man so long as some other woman feels sorry for him.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE C-234: Marvin V., aged 24, is in love with his second cousin. "We'd like to get married," he began anxiously, "but our parents feel we should not do so because we are second cousins. Naturally, we should like to have a family but if there are any hazards to the health or intelligence of our children, we would either have to forego having children of our own or else break up our romance entirely. Dr. Crane, what are the medical and psychological views on the subject of intermarriage?"

INBREEDING IS NOT hazardous if the ancestries on both sides are good. But if deafness or feeblemindedness or diabetes or hemophilia or any other recessive traits appear in both ancestries, then the mating of closely related individuals will increase the likelihood that some of their children may be so afflicted. If the family ancestries even of brother and sister are sound for several generations back, then from the eugenic angle they could much more safely marry than could two total strangers whose respective ancestries both contained recessive defects. Professor Knight Dunlap, one of our eminent American psychologists, once wrote a challenging treatise actually urging inbreeding. His argument was that such matings would quickly bring to the surface these defective recessive traits. Then, by institutionalizing the latter individuals, we could ultimately get rid of such defects of human inheritance.

HIS PLAN IS interesting to contemplate though not practical. In inheritance there are dominant traits and recessive traits. Normalcy seems to dominate abnormalcy. Thus, a person with a perfect ancestry as regards good hearing, can marry an individual who also has good hearing, but whose ancestry contains many examples of deafness. The normal will then dominate the deafness, and the children of such a couple should all have good hearing If however, both parents had perfect hearing, but their ancestries both had instances of deafness, then one or more of their children might get a double dose of the recessive traits and be born with defective hearing. For generations the recessive traits may be passed along and never crop out until they encounter similar recessive traits in the other parent. It was to eliminate these "hidden" or recessive traits that Professor Dunlap urged inbreeding.

INBREEDING increases the tendencies in the parents. If they are strong, healthy and intelligent, then inbreeding helps their offspring. If they are both weak or defective then inbreeding increases the likelihood of weak offspring. If both parents are normal but both have inherited recessive traits of deafness, feeblemindedness, etc., then one or more of their children may be deaf or feebleminded. Remember, however, that Moses was the child of a marriage between aunt and nephew, while Jacob married his first cousins. It isn't so much your kinship which counts, as it is the freedom of your respective ancestries from defects.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

DELICATE light desserts are, as a rule, more appreciated in spring than at any other time. The sudden reduction of body needs for energy foods perhaps causes the mind to approve of something that will be less of a chore for the body to handle. So the cook who thrives on having her family and guests heartily approve of her handiwork, should aim at making appetizing, but delicate desserts for the next five or six months. The following desserts falls in this category provided you obtain a tender, airy steamed puff on which to pour your carefully prepared pink rhubarb sauce.

Cake Puffs with Rhubarb.

One cup cake flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one egg, one-third cup sugar, one-half cup milk, two tablespoons margarine, melted, Rhubarb sauce.

Sift flour, measure and resift three times with baking powder and salt. Beat egg slightly, add sugar and beat thoroughly. Add milk and margarine. Then add flour mixture all at once and beat until well mixed. Pour into four or five buttered custard cups and bake in a 400 degree oven for fifteen to twenty minutes. Serve with a slightly thickened rhubarb sauce, which has a bit of butter and a dash each of cinnamon and nutmeg, added. Four or five servings.

MENUS FOR WEDNESDAY.

Breakfast.

Grapefruit halves, two whole grapefruit, sweetened with honey; Poached eggs on toast, four eggs; Bacon, one pound, use one-third.

Luncheon.

Vegetable soup, one package dehydrated. Right before serving, add eight or 10 finely shredded spinach leaves; peanut butter sandwiches, eight slices bread, peanut butter; baked custards, four topped with a teaspoon of jam; creole kisses, use one-half of remaining.

Dinner.

Barbecued spareribs, place spareribs in a shallow pan and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Meanwhile saute one medium chopped onion in two tablespoons drippings. Add one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon vinegar, three tablespoons lemon juice, two tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, one-half teaspoon prepared mustard, one-half cup water, one-half cup chopped celery leaves, one tablespoon salt and a dash of red pepper. Cook this for 20 minutes. Pour over spareribs and continue baking for another hour. Escalloped potatoes, one and one-half pounds; buttered peas, three pounds fresh; carrots and cabbage salad, one cup shredded carrots, two cups finely shredded cabbage, six radishes, thinly sliced, one tablespoon pickle relish, two tablespoons chili sauce, one-third cup mayonnaise, season to taste; hard rolls, eight bought; cake puff with rhubarb, see recipe above. Butter or fortified margarine used on all breads. Include in today's menus, milk to drink: six cups for children, two cups for adults.

Your Stars

WHAT TO EXPECT TOMORROW.

Sun in Taurus.

General Tendencies—Go easy all day long, for this is not a time for wild adventure or even very moderate deviations from the rule of things. The influence of Saturn is now strong, and this is always toward conventional ideas, sometimes very mossgrown notions, in fact. But changes i nthought or act will not turn out well if begun tomorrow—they should wait quite a few days yet.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday.

You have definite connections with finances in the course of the next 12 months. Part of this will be distinctly to your advantage, although you will undergo some doubts about this side of it before you may have finished. Do not expect too much to happen before next August, and then do not think that everything will come your way quickly. As for romance, be very, very careful.

Beets show bad effects from acid soil. It causes stunted growth, small roots and too much red and yellow coloring in their leaves.

Tricks With Scarfs

By Sylvia Stiles

IN a season when accessories are playing such an important part in the success of a costume, and when many women are combining old frocks with new accents, the scarf can be used to excellent advantage.

Both oblong and square scarfs are suitable for many of the tricks which give a familiar costume a novel appearance, or make a new suit do the service of several. Two scarfs, both oblong, are used for the bright front which is illustrated. Made of gaily colored chiffon, these scarfs are tied halter fashion and then draped over the bodice into two decorative panels. The ends are pulled through the belt and then doubled over to give the smart peplum effect.

Another neckline arrangement that is flattering is created by circling an oblong scarf around the neck and looping the ends over to spread in the cap-sleeve effect. Still a third that is especially appropriate for a low backed dress is to drape the scarf so that it falls like a cape, covering the top of the arms.

A halter overblouse can be made out of a giant chiffon square by knotting two ends at the back of the neck and bringing the opposite ends around the waist. If you like the new hipline decoration that is creeping into fashion trends, try it out with a scarf in one or more ingenious ways.

A bright scarf tied into a huge bow makes a bright splash of color if placed at the hipline of a dark dress. There also is the trick of draping a long chiffon scarf about your waist, spreading it wide at one hip and tapering it across the front to give the effect of a lowered waistline. Still another novel effect is created by folding a printed square diagonally, then looping it through the belt so that it looks like an oversized pocket.

A BASIC DRESS CAN BE DRESSED UP BY USING TWO SCARFS, SUCH AS THESE OF GLENTEX CHIFFON, TO FORM BODICE DRAPERY AND PEPLUM EFFECT.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

Drang Nach Osten.

It is the words the Germans have for "pressure towards the East"—it is the phrase that epitomizes their megalomania for extending their influence Eastward.

It is a compulsion complex, as the psychiatrists would put it, that twice within the experience of comparatively young men has turned peace-loving peoples into killers in self-defense, imposed costly burdens upon victors as well vanquished — burdens that will hardly be eased by the toil of the present generation and of generations yet unborn, that has made the normal land and water routes of communication between nations into rivers of blood.

Well, the war is far from won; ghastly losses are in the offing; but the "Drang nach osten" bubble has collapsed, the idea to be forever washed up, and soon, we pray, by the armies dedicated to the liberation of the enslaved inhabitants of the continent Europe.

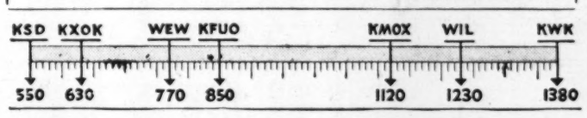

About 500,000 persons are in hospitals for mental diseases in the United States.

The salary of a member of the British Parliament (Commons) is £600 (about $2400).

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

MY husband is about to drive me crazy. He is always nagging about something—the house isn't clean, this is wrong, that is wrong. Work at the housekeeping all day and things are still wrong. And along with the nagging he yells, calls me names, throws things, even slaps me. He is always finding some place to work nights, says he does it so he won't have to look at me so much and Mrs. Carr, I'm not by any means a Frankenstein. Then when I've had just too much and threaten to leave him he gets so sweet and tells me he just likes to boss. We have a six-month-old baby but I am sure I haven't neglected either him or the house since it came. I love my husband and it would break my heart to leave him, but I can't see going on with things like this for the rest of our lives. What shall I do? TIRED OF THIS.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Your husband's conduct is like that of a child or an undisciplined adolescent. He must learn to have patience, to grow up and be a man. He is a husband and father, should know by now that the usual result of such quarreling is only more quarreling. You should call a halt on such conduct before it goes any farther. If you have already tried talking matters over with him when he was in a calm mood, and it has done no good, perhaps a temporary separation might help matters. It would give him time to realize, with no you around the house, how unkept a house can get, how much time meal getting and dish washing, etc., consume. He will have time to miss you, realize how unkind he has been, and the result may be a different acting husband after your return.

Dear Martha Carr:

THERE IS GOING to be a backward dance in the gym at our school, and I've asked one of the boys in my room to go with me. But I don't know how I should act when the music starts. Do I ask him to dance? After the dance do I just leave him standing in the middle of the floor? Please tell me what I'm supposed to do. J. B.

A backward party is conducted with the roles of boy and girl reversed. If several of you girls in the same neighborhood have asked boys in the same neighborhood, you girls can go together and call for the boys. At the dance the girls see to it that the boys meet other girls and have partners, they are the ones to ask the boys to dance. Since you have asked a certain boy as your date you should dance at least the first, last and the dance just before the refreshments, with him. If there is a time set aside for refreshments at the school dance as there would be at a private one, you spend that time with your date. If no one comes to claim your date after each dance you either continue to dance with him or take him to join the other boys who aren't dancing the next dance. In other words, you behave toward the boy as he would behave toward you if he had taken you to the party. If you would like to have my Leap Year Party leaflet to give you some further suggestions for your backward party at school, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will mail it to you.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM A BOY in my teens, work here in St. Louis, am in love with a girl in my home town. She is always writing that she hears I am dating other girls, having such good times in the big city, etc., and it isn't true. I tell her this but she doesn't usually believe me. I've thought of asking her to marry me but don't think I could support her just now on what I earn. It seems to me after I get into the service if we can be true to each other till after the war then it would be safe to marry her. What do you think? WONDERING.

I think, my lad, that you have picked for yourself a rather jealous girl friend. People who love each other should trust each other. She should also have sufficient faith in herself to feel that she can hold you, but apparently there is a doubt of that in her mind. In the teens it is much better not to allow yourself to become so serious about any one girl. Be friends with and date several if you like, and even promises had best wait till the war is over and you have all become more mature.

IN ANSWER TO "Ambitious": You are being a little too ambitious to start using lipstick at your age. It is much better taste to wait till you are a little older. Most girls start using lipstick of not too bright a hue, at about 13, or when they first enter high school. So you see I agree with mother.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A VERY special bouquet should in my opinion be handed to a certain young woman who, still playing what she calls a mediocre game of bridge, does not think it fair to accept invitations to bridge parties until her game has improved. This consideration for others is as unusual as it is admirable, but there is a second problem which complicates the situation which she further describes: "We're newcomers here and I am only beginning to receive invitations. If I decline the first ones, for the reasons I explained, they may not be repeated and I am concerned, naturally, lest I be forgotten."

I THINK THE chances of your being forgotten are slight if, as long as necessary, you explain frankly that you don't play well yet but that you love the game and are practicing as much as you can, and hope that you will be asked later on. Or perhaps you might suggest that you would love to come sometimes and watch the game. Very few bridge players mind being watched by someone who is learning. Also there is no objection to your giving bridge parties. Many hostesses who are expert players never play in their own houses when there are to be several tables, because they want to be free to look after their guests.

DEAR MRS. POST: I don't like to send baby announcements if these could in any way make people who receive them feel obliged to send presents to the baby. But I would like to send them to our general Christmas card list because this is no ordinary baby. We've been married many years and never had a child and had long since put having our own baby out of mind as out of the question. But it's an imminent event and we would like everyone to know. But not if there is this other obligation imposed upon them.

Answer: If people do not hear of the baby's arrival, they cannot send a present. But there is no obligation to send one upon receiving a card than there would be should they hear your news through a friend—and I'm sure they will want to hear.

Doctor on Cup Versus The Bottle

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

SOME TIME ago in order to evoke comment I published a letter from a lady who referred to "the pernicious practice of teaching tiny babies to take their nourishment from a cup." She quoted Dr. Alexis Carrel as saying that "sucking is necessary for the proper development of the jaws, nose and roof of the mouth." Here is a comment:

"Your column is read with interest every day at our house. This morning's paper really did 'evoke further comment,' at least from me.

"In regard to the statement that infants should not be fed from a cup, I should like to tell you of our experience.

"After a severe fever when my little girl was six months old I was unable to nurse her. An older doctor suggested feedings from a cup. Although rather hard to do at first, she thrived and gained weight.

"We held the child in our laps and turned the cup towards her as you would drink from it yourself. There is a sucking motion and if the child is exceptionally hungry she nearly pulls the cup from your hand."

A FRIEND OF MINE, Dr. G. M. Frizgen who is the complete pediatrician and qualifies as an authority because he brought his two children up on cup drinking and has a picture of them at the age of six to show how healthy they are, teaches all his students, so he tells me, to train mothers to teach babies to drink out of a cup rather than a nursing bottle.

There are several advantages, the most important being that it teaches them to eat. Thus there is no hiatus at the time when the baby begins to take more or less solid food.

Besides, there seems to be a more regular alignment of teeth in the cup drinkers than in the bottle suckers. That some changes are made in the mouth parts from too vigorous sucking is evidenced by another letter received from Toronto:

"I have a little son of three and one-half years of age. He has never lost the nursing bubble that appears on the upper lip of babies. He was weaned from the breast at seven months and on a bottle for two months. Will this have to be removed, and if so in what way?"

I am assured, again by Dr. Frizgen, that these sucking pads all go away in the course of time although he says he has seen some persist even to the fifth year.

CONTRARY TO expectations and pre-suppositions the baby who drinks from the cup does not spill most of the meal. He gets all he needs, as is shown by weight gain, practically universally found in cup drinkers.

It is really Nature's method. The baby at the breast does not suck the milk out from the mother. It flows out in response to the stimulus of the baby's lips against the nipple. It is only at the end of the feeding that the baby does any vigorous sucking and this is an instinctive action which stimulates the breast to begin secreting for the next meal.

Along these lines I have another letter:

"I am the grandmother of a 15-day-old baby boy who weighs seven pounds now and seems healthy. The trouble and worry for me is this: The hospital nurse told the mother to always put the baby on his stomach. The baby, of course helpless, lies upside down, his face pressed in the bedding, arms and hands crushed under him."

There is no "must" about putting the baby on the stomach, but that is the best and natural position for going to sleep. If put on its back it may stay wide eyed and want to play. It also prevents rubbing hair off the back of the head. A healthy baby is not helpless: turns its head on the side to get air. The arms and legs won't get crushed. Most babies move faster than you can keep them on the stomach.

Not a Doctor, But a Medical Authority

Mrs. Ellis Fischel's Work With Spastic Cases Wins National Recognition.

By Helen Clanton

WHEN Mrs. Ellis Fischel went to live in New York several years ago, one of her plans was to continue composing music, a field in which she had already established a reputation. "It had been several years since I had done anything with my music, and I thought I could devote my time to it in New York," she explained in an interview in her apartment at the Park Plaza where she is staying temporarily. "Had I not been so deeply impressed with a movie about the dangers that Red Cross nurses undergo in wartime, I might have carried out my intention. But that movie made me wonder whether the healing of the sick was not greater than music. I took a bus ride to decide, and happened to glance up at the inscription over the main entrance of Presbyterian General Hospital as we passed by. It said: 'For of the most high cometh healing.' That settled it for me. I decided to offer my services to New York for the care of spastic children."

THAT was over four years ago, Since that time Mrs. Fischel has personally treated, without remuneration, over 450 cases of spastic paraplegia, in children.

Inspired by the remarkable success which she achieved in the treatment of her own son who was born with spastic paraplegia, or lack of muscle control, Mrs. Fischel, widow of the late St. Louis cancer specialist, wrote a book in 1934 called "The Spastic Child." Since its publication, the book has been widely recognized by medical authorities. "Since I am not a doctor," Mrs. Fischel explains, "I am proud that my book is now required reading in all the large hospitals, and it is the only book written by a non-medical person in the Library of the Academy of Medicine.

"Because of my book, I was invited to the Cornell Medical Center, to assist with the creation of a clinic for spastic children. I remained there four years, helping in the training of therapists, giving lectures to technicians and nurses, and treating cases. I am proud to say that I was able to raise $3,000,000 in New York for the clinic, and the Center has named the clinic for spastic children for me—the Fischel Clinic."

MRS. ELLIS FISCHEL

Later Mrs. Fischel was asked to act as consultant on similar cases at the Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled, the Neurological and the Presbyterian Hospitals in New York.

"I took my son to all the new clinics in New York," she says proudly, "to give proof of the success of my treatment. When they looked at him—over six feet tall, healthy, looking like a cross between Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Victor Mature—they just couldn't believe that he had ever been spastic. He served for six months in the Merchant Marines, you know, and attended Harvard for two years. He is most interested in the theater, and is a graduate of the Pasadena Playhouse. Right now, he is writing a play in New York."

Compelled to forego some of her part in the program for spastics in New York because of her health, Mrs. Fischel now finds it impossible to treat personally the many cases of spastic children brought to her attention.

"I receive letters from parents of afflicted children all over the country," she says, "and I wish I had the strength to help them all. However, great strides are being made by the medical profession in their care, and my theories are being taught in many hospitals."

A native St. Louisan, Mrs. Fischel is the former Marguerite Kauffman. She grew up in the Kauffman home which stood on the present site of the Chase Hotel, the grounds of which encompassed the entire block. During her married life, as the wife of Dr. Ellis Fischel, she demonstrated her keen interest in the arts as well as her wide talents. She was helpful in launching the former St. Louisan, Helen Traubel, now a member of the Metropolitan Opera, on her musical career, and assisted in introducing Joe Jones, St. Louis-born artist, to artistic circles. Her own musical compositions were published by Schirmer's in New York, and continue to be played in the East during the concert season. Her art work gained for her a certificate ordinarily only awarded to physicians, recognizing her as a member of the "American Physicians Art Association."

RECENTLY Mrs. Fischel has become a member of the Guild of American Economists, a distinguished group of scholars and philosophers dedicated to research "undertaken to determine in contemporary terms what is known concerning underlying order in nature and the bearing of this order upon human society." Albert Einstein is a member of the advisory board of the Guild, which bases an interpretation of modern society upon mathematical standards and principles.

"I was drawn to the Guild by my sense of cause and effect, my sense of proportion and creative institution," Mrs. Fischel explains. "We are attempting to interpret the nature of man, art, philosophy, religion and science as directed toward a free society."

When Mrs. Fischel returns to New York, she hopes to interpret in a book the philosophy of natural law, as expressed in the theories of the Guild of American Economists in musical and written composition, artististic drawing, and mathematical forms. She will shortly have an article on the subject published in Fortune magazine.

It does not seem strange to her that her talent has expressed itself in various forms, music, poetry, art, medicine, mathematics. "My talent, if I have any," she explains it, "is in carrying a sense of proportion and intuition through everything I've done."

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Monday.

SPEAKING of short memories in a previous column made me want to give you an illustration of how short they really are! I wonder how many of you read the following quotation from Mr. Eric Johnston's speech to the publishers and editors a few nights ago. Mr. Johnston is president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He is a fine man and a courageous one. He would mean to be truthful but his memory is short. Here is the quotation:

"As a people we Americans do not frighten easily. But I would remind you that in the decade before the war we were fed a heavy diet of fear, fear of personal insecurity, fear of another depression, fear of business, fear even of ourselves. Life became just one damned fear after another. The defeatist and pessimist got us so busy fearing other things we forgot to fear that which really is important, and that is big government."

Mr. Johnston forgets to mention the fear of corruption on a big scale, or inefficiency, or uncontrolled world situations, all of which were factors in putting fear in the hearts of people. These fears rose also in business when it was uncontrolled and unhelped by a big enough government. This big fear engulfed us a little more than a decade ago.

Later in his speech Mr. Johnston says that all democratic governments have to be controlled by the people and that we must fear their apathy above everything else. I do not believe that he really fears big business, big government, big armies or navies, big newspapers. I agree that we should fear apathetic people who do not control government or business, who do not watch the public interest in business, in the press, in government and in international relations.

We must remind ourselves, however, that courage and hope have come to the great mass of people since 1933, and fear, which was in the hearts of nearly all the people has revived only to a limited extent in the hearts of those who fear not the disasters of 1929 and 1930, but the inability to repeat a part of the financial program of the 20's.

War has put fear in all our hearts for those we love who are in fighting zones, but it has intensified our self-confidence because of our pride in our fighting men and their achievements and the knowledge that as we reach each new crisis at home, the people have so far managed to meet it not only adequately, but magnificently. Stretch your memories! Where once all were afraid, now very few know fear!

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

JUST because a defender can overruff the declarer is not good or sufficient reason for his doing so. Consider this case.

North, dealer.
North-South, vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 diamond	1 heart	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	4 hearts	(Final bid)

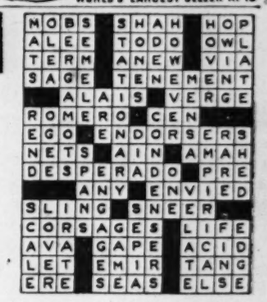

This deal occurred at match point duplicate.

At this particular table the play proceeded as follows: West led the diamond king; East overtook and laid down the queen and jack. Declarer ruffed with the jack—and West promptly overruffed with the queen. (Perhaps he thought he might lose that card!) West returned a spade; the ace won, the heart ace was cashed, and declarer, entering his own hand with a spade, drew the rest of the trumps without loss. He had to go down a trick, of course, because of West's club ace, but when the scores were posted later, East-West found that the 100 points they had earned on this board gave them very few match points.

There were two good reasons for this. One was that West should have doubled the final contract; the other was that if he had correctly refused to overruff the jack of hearts, he would have set the contract another trick by eventually winning two tricks with the queen and eight of trumps.
